In Florida A Canal Needed One Happy Man Come and See

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 20—This is written on the train from New York to Miami to be dropped off at West Palm Beach telegraph office. It is comfortable, easy, interesting trip, to Washington on the Pennsylvania line, then to Richmond on the Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, then all the way south through Virginia, both the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida via the Seaboard Air Line.

The late President Warfield of the Seaboard, who forced his railroad through down the West Coast and across Florida to Miami, rendered public service, and Florida should build a monument to him.

You enter a heavy steel Pullman car in the Pennsylvania's New York terminal at 9:30 a. m. and leave it in Miami at 6:55 p. m. the next evening. Only one night on the train.

This Florida is a wonderful country, a great natural sun parlor, room for millions on a peninsula, stretching down into the tropics, holding back the waters of the Gulf that absorb the sun's heat and travel eastward to warm our British cousins.

What all American shipping interests need, is a canal across Florida, connecting the Atlantic ocean with the Gulf of Mexico, making it unnecessary for ships from Eastern ports bound for the Gulf states to travel all around the end of Florida, more than a thousand miles of sailing wasted on each trip.

J. I. Daniels, energetic young president of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, boards the train early, to talk about that.

It is a disgrace to this country, proof of sluggishness, that the canal from the Atlantic to the Gulf has been so long delayed.

Senator Long, who has recently moved from his home on the Gulf to Washington, might use some of the "beginner's" enthusiasm and push this canal project through. The shipping which it would serve, according to Mr. Daniels, of Jacksonville, would exceed by one-third the shipping that now passes through the Panama canal. Construction of the canal would be very cheap, a trifle, as compared with Panama, and it would pay for itself the first few years.

Just now, the Seaboard train is cutting across the heart of Florida, the brilliant sun is hot. Flowers, red, scarlet, purple, blaze in all directions. Men on the train have taken off coats and waistcoats.

Birds do not like the chimes, not understanding that kind of music. But they like chimes better than shotguns.

Dozens of snow white birds flap their way slowly across the level land and float on stagnant waters. They used to be slaughtered for the feathers that grow on the tops of their heads. They are protected now.

The fertile land is dotted with infinite numbers of lakes, the biggest of them, Okeechobee, just ahead, is the largest fresh water lake entirely within the United States borders.

Mysterious swamps are many, with gray moss hanging from the trees, and below alligators that doze through a century and more, active only when hungry, or when a rifle bullet disturbs their peace for the sake of an alligator-skin bag.

The grapefruit grow in unbelievable abundance, half a dozen at the end of one thin branch, and you may see from 20 to 50 large, yellow and ripe, lying on the ground, under one tree, going to waste. The health of the nation needs all the citrus fruit that this country could produce in Florida, the Gulf states and California. But distance and middlemen separate the consumer from the fruit, in our day of imperfect distribution.

What marvels human industry, modern agricultural methods and capital could work in this state. That will come in time, not everything can be accomplished in 100 years. First must come the boom and the exploded boom, then the people and the finished product.

Everything in abundance here, fish, game, fruit, vegetables, sunshine, everything that human happiness requires.

When the late W. J. Conners of Buffalo, presented to this writer one of his lots fronting on Lake Okeechobee, he said truly:

STONE, CLIFF INDICTED IN BANK CASE

Third Arrest to Be Made on a Federal Court Charge Involving Shortage of $150,000

Secret indictments have been returned by the federal grand jury in connection with affairs of the closed Boston Continental National Bank, against Joseph Stone of Brockton, a vice-president, and Percy C. Cliff of Belmont, it was revealed today.

Stone was arraigned in Federal Court on indictment charges of extracting $29,808.48 from the bank's funds, and conspiracy to misapply funds of the bank totalling $150,000.

Cliff, the son of former Mayor Zebedee F. Cliff of Somerville, was arraigned on the conspiracy charge and was held in $2500, after pleading not guilty.

According to Asst. U. S. Atty. John J. Walsh, Jr., they will be arraigned again at 10 a. m. Wednesday, with a third man, on a charge of extracting $150,000 from the bank's funds.

Col. Terrell M. Ragan of West Roxbury, who was found dead in his garage three weeks ago, was president of the closed bank.

Only Concern Is to See Right Man in White House, He Says at Roosevelt Rally

"I am not a candidate for Governor, and will not accept the nomination even though it were tendered me without a contest."*—MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY.

More than 1500 men and women jammed the Roosevelt-for-President Forum, with an opening today at noon, on Washington st., between Bromfield and Boylston sts., and Mayor Curley made the announcement in defense of the charge that he was controlled by personal ambition.

There was little room for the meeting but on the second floor seats, standing room and aisles. It overflowed to the corridors and on to the street.

Several hundred stood outside the building, blocking traffic to listen in on the loud speakers. Many women were in the throng.

PROPER LEADERSHIP

Traffic was routed over Franklin and Bromfield sts. during the meeting, with Traffic Commissioner Conry on hand supervising things.

Mayor Curley asserted his purpose was to see proper leadership established at Washington so the

Mr. Smith's Strategy

IT IS DIFFICULT to understand exactly why Mr. Alfred E. Smith is injecting himself into the present presidential campaign.

He certainly cannot expect to obtain the Democratic nomination. In fact, there are only one or two states which he could possibly hope to secure in a presidential primary.

Mr. Smith has to his discouraging discredit the most disastrous electoral defeat which a Democratic presidential candidate has sustained since Greeley; nor was Mr. Smith's defeat sectional nor factional in character.

He was "snowed under" in the North, in the South, in the East, in the West. He failed even to carry his own State.

MR. SMITH consequently is the last man whom sincere Democrats honestly desiring Democratic success would wish to nominate. He himself is not so dull nor so vain as not to recognize these obvious facts.

Then why has he entered the campaign unless with a dog in the manger desire to disrupt the Democratic party and prevent anyone else from achieving the success he so capriciously failed to secure?

Mr. Smith in his recent statements presenting his name to the electorate declared that he was not ACTUALLY because not ACTIVELY a candidate.

But now he is actively a candidate. Perhaps the gentleman's meaning was that he is not GENUINELY a candidate.

MANY who are acquainted with Mr. Smith's political career are inclined to accept this interpretation of his motives. Many believe that in this campaign, as not infrequently in the past, Mr. Smith has entered the field to defeat progressive candidates and to protect the Morgan properties and other Wall street interests from the popular measures of a genuine Democratic government.

Mr. Roosevelt in his progressive program criticized the bribery and corruption of Mr. Morgan's power trust, its subsidizing of teachers in the schools and colleges, its outright purchase of newspapers, its corrupt control of politicians.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Raskob then promptly rushed to the front to defend the power trust, and to declare that the power trust's demoralizing performances were in no sense an issue in the coming campaign.

MR. SMITH'S attack upon Gov. Roosevelt for his courage in challenging, like David, the Goliath

BULLETINS!

Pocatello, Ida., March 21 (AP)—Two police officers from Newark, N. J., arrived here today and began questioning Ignace Blaustein, who declared in a statement to Pocatello police last week that he drove the car in which Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was taken to a Newark address and left with an unnamed woman.

Mineola, N. Y., March 21 (INS)—Chief of Detectives Harold R. King announced this afternoon that he had received a report of a kidnaping from the Childs Frick estate in Roslyn, L. I.

King said a stable hand had been set upon by several men who stuffed cotton in his mouth, tied him up and then offered to pay him well if he would tell them the room where the Frick child was kept.

Trenton, N. J., March 21 (INS)—Beyond a reiteration of previous statements to the effect that they are investigating all possible clues, the New Jersey police late today had nothing to report in the official communique dealing with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping mystery.

"There are no definite leads in Englewood [home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother-in-law of Col. Lindbergh] or vicinity which would implicate anyone with the kidnaping," said the bulletin issued this afternoon by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey police.

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh have been urged to leave their home near Hopewell and go

COMPROMISE FAVORS ADOPTION OF SALES TAX BILL

FOOD, CLOTHING, MEDICINES TO BE EXEMPT

LaGuardia Is Agreeable to a Levy on Autos, Radios and Other So-Called Luxuries

Washington, March 21 (AP) —House leaders were ready today to clear the way for a decision tomorrow on the controversial manufacturers' sales levy in the new tax bill and the battle over the proposition will be delayed several days.

Washington, March 21 (AP) —By making more concessions to the opposition, the champions of the billion-dollar tax bill seemed in a fair way today of getting it across with the sales tax feature included.

Rep. LaGuardia (R., N. Y.), a leader of the anti-sales-tax forces that have dominated in voting on the bill so far, let it be known that if food, clothing and medicine levies were omitted from the bill he would have no fundamental objection to it.

While he spoke only for himself, it was taken to indicate a different sentiment will prevail when the House resumes consideration of the bill tomorrow.

LETTER FROM MILLS

The New Yorker made the announcement at a conference with newspapermen after he received a letter from Secretary Mills in which it was stated LaGuardia's substitute program for the revenue bill would fall short by $530,000,000 of the $1,100,000,000 needed to balance the budget in 1933.

The ways and means committee already have decided to exempt additional foods from the 2.25 per cent manufacturers tax and planned to consider this afternoon proposals to exempt all food, clothing and medicine.

Acting Chairman Crisp said striking out such levies would reduce the $595,000,000 yield expected of the sales taxes by $145,000,000— which would have to be made up in other ways.

AUTOS, RADIOS TO PAY.

LaGuardia said he was willing for excise taxes to be levied on automobiles, radios, electric refrigerators and all other things not considered necessaries of life.

Crisp conferred with Hull and Representative Doughton, (D., N. C.), leaders of the opposition forces, and Representative Snell of New York, Republican leader, Rainey of Illinois, Democratic leader, with a view to a formal conference probably tonight in an effort to reach an agreement before the House resumes consideration of the bill tomorrow.

Doughton said he would continue to oppose the principle of the sales tax, but conceded that with the removal of the necessaries of life from the levy, there was more possibility of its being adopted.

N. E. LEADS OIL FIGHT

A large group of New England and Atlantic coast state members decided at a meeting today to force a fight on the one cent a gallon tax on imported oil proposed in the committee bill.

Representative McCormack (D., Mass.), member of the ways and means committee, was chosen to submit an amendment striking the levy out.

The tax was put in to meet the demands of the middle western and southwestern states and California for protection against foreign oil imports. But, since most of the oil states representatives have turned against the sales tax, indications are that the leaders do not care whether it stays in the bill or not.

Rep. Crisp said he hoped the Atlantic coast states were successful in throwing it out.

LONG HITS STANDARD OIL

While the House proper heard little of taxes today, the question was brought up in the Senate by Long (D., La.) in an attack on the "coalition leadership" working in the House for the sales levy.

"No one over there is proposing a tax on foreign oil coming into this country," he said. "No one is reaching out to tax the Standard Oil Company."

Senator Shortridge (R., Cal.) interrupted to state that he has pending a bill to impose a tax on foreign oil importations and urged support by the Louisiana senator.

Long referred to the stand of Louisiana's House delegation, some of which were sitting in the rear of the Senate, and said it was his understanding the group was "opposing the coalition leadership."

He prefaced his speech with a review of his own administration as governor, saying impeachment proceedings were brought against him, when he proposed to tax the Standard Oil.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, interrupted to point out that the House bill includes a tax on imported crude petroleum.

Long replied that that had been written in by the "insurgent element" and not by the "coalition," and that he was offered by members opposed to the sales tax.

Applause broke out in the men's gallery as Long continued with an appeal for distribution of wealth "so we will have no more men sleeping on park benches and no more starving while our bins are filled with food."

NEW CHECK-UP ON ALL BABY CLUES

to the Morrow home in Englewood, but they have not yet done so, preferring to wait—and hope—for the return of their baby, now missing twenty days.

The nation-wide efforts to solve the case were dismissed in a sentence in Schwarzkopf's statement, as follows:

"A number of communications have been received by agents of the Department of Justice from officers all over the country indicating their desire to co-operate."

The status of Henry ("Red") Johnson, deckhand, suitor of Betty Gow, nurse of the Lindbergh baby, was thus explained:

"As related in previous bulletins, Henry Johnson was questioned and his statements compared with those he had previously made and also with statements taken from others. No information of any consequence in this case, in addition to his other statements, was discovered. The Newark and Jersey City police departments are still co-operating with this department."

Col. Schwarzkopf further declared that "our investigators are still trying to find out the exact meaning of the note attached to the dead pigeon."

In East Stroudsburg, Pa., a crude note was found tied to the legs of a dead pigeon. The Stroudsburg police sent it to Hopewell. It was reported, however, that this "clue" was a hoax—that it was the work of small boys. The note had been signed "Red."

BOYS' PRANK.

The boys found the pigeon last Friday, wrote the note and attached it to the pigeon's leg. They placed it in front of a store in Stroudsburg, Pa., where it was found Saturday morning.

Police said the boys told their parents of the prank after learning it had caused some excitement.

Col. Schwarzkopf gave out the information about the message and later revealed that it was a boys' prank.

The rest of Schwarzkopf's statement was a summary of the police activity of the past 24 hours and could add nothing of a promising nature as far as leading toward a solution of the crime was concerned.

"Several people were interviewed yesterday purporting to have information concerning the case," the statement concluded. "In each instance the information was offered in confidence, and this confidence will be respected. All of the information so received is now being investigated.

"Investigators are out all over the state following up information received and no reports are available as yet from any of them."

JOHNSON SENT BACK

Henry ("Red") Johnson, suitor of Betty Gow, Lindbergh nursemaid, was returned from the Lindbergh estate, where he had been questioned since Saturday morning, to Jersey City Prison last night.

Little valuable information was obtained from him, police announced. It was reported Johnson was brought to Hopewell at Lindbergh's own request.

Johnson is held for federal authorities, Jersey police announced, on charges of entering this country illegally.

Miss Theresa Desi, Wertaville, N. J., unemployed stenographer who previously told of seeing a suspicious group in a stalled automobile a few hours before the kidnaping, "offered nothing of importance" to the case when interviewed again, Schwarzkopf declared.

He said he had not been informed whether she identified as one occupant of the car a man whose picture she saw at the rogues' gallery in New York.

He said the house was thoroughly searched in the course of the investigation carried on in the neighborhood of the Lindbergh home, but nothing of importance was found. She did supply the whereabouts of a man who worked on the road leading to the home whom police wanted to question.

FOUR BABIES STUDIED

Schwarzkopf declared John Malden, held on suspicion of seeking to kidnap a child in the home of Seward Johnson at Highland Park, had no connection with the Lindbergh case.

A sedan containing three men, one of them with fresh cuts showing on his face, dashed up to the Lindbergh estate under escort of a motocycle police squad. No report on this visit to the Lindbergh home was forthcoming.

Four babies, two of whom resembled the missing Lindbergh baby "remarkably," were examined by investigators, Schwarzkopf declared. In each case, investigators soon learned it to be not the missing baby.

Numerous telephone messages telling of young children believed to look like Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., were received by his parents in the past few days.

COLONEL SAYS "NO"

Both Colonel Lindbergh and his wife, answering these calls from near or far-away points, requested detailed descriptions of the children reported. Through the absence of certain definite identifying marks their baby possesses, they were able to establish the child involved in each case was not theirs.

One dispatch from Juarez, Mexico, stated an American woman was seen to cross the International bridge from El Paso, Texas, with a child resembling the Lindbergh infant. Police were asked to look for her.

Sancho Cucchiara and Caspar Oliver, held in Somerset County in connection with the finding of two stolen automobiles, were not linked to the Lindbergh case, police announced, although it was rumored they were questioned about it.

A man telephoned to Lindbergh yesterday and said his baby would be returned today and that the speaker was trailing three men and a woman he overheard plotting the abduction.

Lindbergh continued the conversation while police traced the call. Officials then reported through cooperation of New York detectives, Rudolph Schwartz, 32 was apprehended while talking to Lindbergh from a booth on the East Side in the metropolis.

He was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Anne, Soon to Be Mother Again, Fights Despair Note

Hopewell, N. J., March 21 (AP)—Spring has brought no warmth to the hearts of a stolen baby's parents. There has been no word of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., stolen from his crib the night of March 1.

The Lindbergh telephone lines continue to buzz with reports from many parts of the country where babies bearing slight resemblance to the stolen child have been seen. Mrs. Lindbergh herself frequently takes the phone calls and interrogates the caller closely as to characteristics of the child.

Special Police Study Babies; Note of Despair Creeps In

Thus far all such leads have proved false. The State Police, determined that no clue no matter how bizarre shall be overlooked, have arranged for a close check on all babies who might possibly include among their number the one being sought. Several details of police are now assigned to this task alone.

Between the lines of the few official police communiques there sounds an occasional note of despair. There has been nothing in several days to indicate that either the police or the private investigators have found any clue which they believe will lead them to solution of the kidnaping.

Lindberghs Stand Strain Well; Work Hard With Officials

The Lindberghs themselves—Col. Charles Lindbergh and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, who is preparing for the advent of another child before spring has gone—remain secluded at the Sourland estate. Friends say they are holding up well under the strain and are co-operating energetically with every police move that may bring their baby home.

$1000 FEE PAID LYNN JUDGE IN WILL CASE

Reeve Cross-Examined in the Fight Over $25,000 Estate of Mrs. Maud Strong

Judge Ralph W. Reeve of Lynn District Court received a $1000 fee as executor of a $25,000 will, it was testified today in Salem Court, when the unusual scene of a judge under cross-examination was enacted.

Judge Reeve is executor of the will of Mrs. Maud Strong of Lynn, who died in February, 1931, a month after the will was drawn.

A jury is reviewing the will on a charge that Mrs. Strong was of unsound mind.

"You took this $1000 fee," querled Atty. John Vaughan. Judge Reeve replied that he had.

Q.—Do you think it ethical to take such a fee for that size will?

A.—Well, it's been done, and I refused it twice as a gift and then took it as a fee.

"Haven't you any will power?" asked Vaughan. There was no answer.

Mr. William G. Ward, member of the Lynn school committee and physician for Mrs. Strong, testified Mrs. Strong suffered from melancholia and had a tendency to turn on her best friends.

He said, in his opinion, she was not mentally competent when the will was made.

1-20 YEARS FOR KIDNAP AID

Warren, O., March 21 (INS)— John De Marco, 31, of Youngstown, today pleaded guilty to "harboring and concealing" James De Jute, 11-year-old Niles boy who was kidnaped and held captive for three days, accepting this plea. Judge Lynn B. Griffith immediately sentenced De Marco to one to 20 years in the penitentiary.

De Marco was the alleged accomplice of Dowell Hargraves, 30, also of Youngstown, who last week was given a life sentence after his conviction on charges of kidnaping the youth. The penalty was the maximum under Ohio law.

'WIRE-TAP' RUM SUSPECTS HELD

Twelve alleged violators of the Prohibition Act, many of them indicted through "wire-tapping" evidence of federal agents, pleaded not guilty to indictments in federal court today and were held in bonds of from $2500 to $10,000.

Abraham Moss of Chicago was held in $10,000 by Judge James A. Lowell, Louis B. Fox of Revere was held in $5000; John F. Philbrin of Beach ave., Swampscott, $5000; George F. Newhall of Broadway, Saugus, $2500, and Harry Wilkie of Florence ave., Revere, $2500.

Wilfred Gauthier, Samuel Davidson, Guido E. Carbone, Thomas A. Martullo and Frank A. Farrell, all of Boston, were held in $2500 each.

Iowa's 25 Sure for Hoover Tomorrow

Des Moines, Ia., March 21 (AP)— If there are any fireworks in Iowa's Republican State convention tomorrow, they'll be set off back stage and not when the delegates are seated.

The formal sessions bore a perfunctory outlook, with the State's 25 delegates to the Republican national convention already pledged to President Hoover, since virtually all county caucuses voted instructions to that effect.

275,000 Jobs Found in National Drive

New York, March 21 (AP)—More than 275,000 jobs had been drafted today in the war against depression.

Minnesota leads all states, having found jobs for 30,012. Delaware, however, topped the country on a percentage basis with a total of 4501 new jobs, representing more than 230 per cent of its comparative quota. The goal set in the campaign is one million jobs.

Released Prisoner in Again for Theft

Frank McDonough, of Shawmut ave., arrested Saturday two hours after he stepped off the Deer Island boat, was arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of larceny.

He pleaded not guilty, and was held in $1000. Police charge McDonough went into a department store, tried on a coat, and walked out with it.

Chinese Accused of Receiving Loot

David Chin, laundryman of Lenox st., was held for the grand jury today by Judge Duff on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

Chin is accused of receiving $600 worth of merchandise found in his cellar. He claimed he had purchased the goods to take back to China. He was found not guilty of stealing the goods.

OHIO OFFICERS ATTACKED IN MINE STRIKE

National Guard Auto Is Stoned by Crowd, Many of Its Members Armed

Athens, O., March 21 (AP)— An automobile, bearing Ohio National Guard officers to Mine No. 6 of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., where a strike of miners is in progress, was stoned by a crowd of men today.

The guard officers, sent into the strike region as observers for Adjt.-Gen. Frank Henderson, were ordered to Millfield to relieve 20 other officers who had been on duty during the night.

The guard observers estimated there were about 1500 men in the strike district today, and many of them were said to be armed with rifles and shotguns.

Scranton, Pa., March 21 (AP)— Ninety pickets, many of them women, were arrested today near the Marvine Colliery of the Hudson Coal Co. as they sought to prevent miners from entering the workings.

The strike, called by insurgents of the United Mine Workers, does not have the authorization of the district union, and was called as a protest against alleged wage cutting.

Mr. Smith's Strategy

of Wall street did not seem to frighten the Governor or to diminish his political prestige.

Whereupon Mr. Smith determined to complicate the situation for David and to relieve Goliath of any unnecessary alarm by projecting himself into the contest and becoming a candidate.

Mr. Smith is not a formidable candidate, but he may be a useful one to Wall street. He cannot possibly be nominated, but he may be able to control a certain number of votes in the convention and to deliver them to the Goliath of Wall street.

SHOULD the Democratic party be divided and defeated by this sinister strategy, then at least Mr. Hoover, a very satisfactory man to the Morgan interests, will be elected; and all will be well in Wall street.

The wrecking of railroads, the destruction and absorption of independent enterprises, the sacrificing of American interests to foreign nations, the dissipation of the American people's money abroad by the big bankers for big commissions can still go on at the old stand.

THE big international bankers, the "Captain Kidds" of industry, the powerful highwaymen of high finance, are very shrewd and very upscrupulous.

In 1924 they managed to nominate Mr. Davis, an actual attorney for the Morgan interests.

In 1928 they managed to nominate Mr. Smith, a tried and true friend of the Morgan properties and policies.

Of course, the great value of all these nominees to Wall street lay in the fact that they practically insured the ELECTION OF THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES. But there was also a certain consideration of safety, in that if they should be by any chance elected they would be sufficiently serviceable to the international bankers and the Wall street interests.

THIS year, however, political conditions seem to be different. The international bankers have been thoroughly exposed as conscienceless speculators.

The House of Morgan's commissions of ten millions of dollars on more or less worthless foreign bonds have been revealed to the public.

The corrupt activities of the power trust have been publicly investigated and made clear and contemptible to the citizenry.

Crooked stock manipulation in which many of our most highly respected citizens figured has proven a calamity to the country and a disgrace to "big business."

High finance is discredited,
Wall street is a "washout."

PERHAPS the House of Morgan, fiscal agent of the British empire, cannot with all its own money and with all its English money this year nominate a Democratic candidate who is satisfactory to the international bankers and the power trust, and the predatory interests.

Government by Wall street not having been lately such a gratifying success, perhaps the public this year will show some capacity for self government.

If so, Mr. Smith's little plan will prove a failure.

deal more hard work, a few more men like Flagler, and Carl Fisher, a little more common sense on the subject of emigration, and this magnificent state will have its 20,000,000 inhabitants, with such wealth and values as the wildest real estate boomers would never have dared suggest.

How beautiful is happiness with no anxiety about tomorrow. The train stops, and a young colored man steps up to a powerful runabout of uncertain age. The train blocks his way, but has he not a powerful engine? Is he not out to enjoy himself?

Driving at high speed, he cuts across an empty lot with deep holes that bounce him and his delighted companion to the top of the car. To avoid an early model T driven by a white lady, the runabout driver "steps on it," climbs over the railroad tracks, goes down a bank and is off to continue enjoyment of speed and power.

INGROWN CLAWS FIXED UP FOR CORNELIUS

Patient Bears Up Stoically, but His Mates Set Up Bedlam While Job Is Done

New York, March 21 (INS)—Central Park zoo was a bedlam of jungle cries today while Cornelius, 19-year-old Bengal tiger, submitted to an operation on his left forepaw.

Cornelius himself, accustomed to the ways of man in his 12 years of tenancy in the lion house, bore the incision with the traditional fortitude of his ancestors.

But not so his associates. Roars of restlessness came from Bad Dick, the Asiatic black leopard who had felt the veterinarian's tweezers himself, and from Metrotone and Movietone, the lions captured by the Fox-Hearst expedition, who occupy adjoining cages.

The hippopotamus alone, wallowing in his tank of heated water, seemed unconcerned while Dr. Harry F. Nimphius, a veteran in this kind of surgery, pulled and cut at two claws grown into the Tiger's flesh through sheer indolence.

SECOND TIME

It was the second experience of Cornelius with the knife. Last year a claw was extracted after it had grown inward. This is caused, the zoologists explained, because of the reluctance of the beasts to scratch, although adequate scratching facilities are provided in their cages.

Cornelius did not assent to the operation without some protest. Lest he decide at the last minute to make use of his paws, grown festered in idleness, keepers first secured him with a noose lowered through the top of his cage.

This rope was made fast to the bars and he was lashed virtually immobile while a pole was stuck in his mouth and the injured member was pulled carefully outside the cage.

GROWLED A BIT

Dr. Nimphius then went about his task while Cornelius, chewing hard on the pole, grinned and bore it. Cornelius didn't wince once, just ground his paws firmly against the wood until one end was cut through.

Then Dr. Nimphius applied iodine. That made Cornelius growl a bit. But it was hardly perceptible above the din of his companions.

After he was released he licked the injured paw. Nature will take care of the rest, the Zoo people said.

All's quiet in Central Park Zoo now.

Curate in $65,000 Will Fight Calls Priest Stubborn

SAYS FR. BROWN HAD VIOLENT TEMPER

Rev. Dennis W. Brown, late pastor of St. Agnes' Church, Reading, was "ridiculously stubborn," one of his curates testified today in Middlesex court, where 14 cousins seek to break the will that leaves most of a $65,000 estate to Boston College.

The cousins charge unsound mind and undue influence by Mrs. Mary McKeanin of Maple ave., Cambridge.

Rev. Walter J. Mitchell, now of Wrentham, said he served for several years under Fr. Brown at Reading.

HAD EXTREME VIEWS.

"Fr. Brown was not a normal character. He was very eccentric and subject to violent temper," Fr. Mitchell testified under questioning of Atty. Lowell Mayberry.

"He had extreme views on various subjects and was ridiculously stubborn in holding to the views.

"He would go into such rages that he appeared to be on the verge of collapse.

"When he was alert he would be very alert. At other times he would nearly fall asleep while conversing."

Under cross-examination by Attorney Philip A. Hendricks, Father Mitchell admitted that his former pastor was a keen business man, conducted the parish on a business basis and celebrated daily mass until shortly before his death.

REFUSED TO GIVE TO KIN

Prior to Fr. Mitchell's testimony Atty. Edmund J. Brandon, who drew the will in 1926, testified that Fr. Brown was "perfectly normal."

"Why don't you make some bequests to relatives?" Brandon said he asked Fr. Brown.

He quoted the reply:

"I don't want to do that. They never did anything for me, so why should I do anything for them? I am friendly with a few cousins, but not particularly so."

Mrs. McKeanin was left furniture and books, a letter of instructions to the executor provided payment of an $800 note for her or the grant of title to her home. The home had been bequeathed to Fr. Brown by his father.

Fr. Brown was formerly a curate at St. Mary's church, Cambridge. Brandon said he maintained a study he called his "haven" at the McKeanin home.

CHAS. A. LEVINE IS INDICTED

New York, March 21 (AP)—Charles A. Levine, first transatlantic airplane passenger, was indicted today for forgery, grand larceny and criminally receiving stolen property.

There were two indictments against the man who sponsored and took part in the flight of Clarence Chamberlin from New York to Germany a few days after Col. Lindbergh flew to France in 1927. The grand larceny and receiving stolen property is alleged to have occurred March 24, 1930, in connection with 100 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph stock that Levine later put up as collateral for a loan of $25,000.

SCHOOL LUNCH 'PROFITS' HIT

Characterizing the Women's Educational and Industrial Union as a "highbrow outfit" which is "making children pay for its fads and theories," City Councilor Dowd reiterated today at the council meeting his charge that the organization is profiting in annual lunches.

Holding up a lettuce sandwich which he said, was purchased today at a high school lunch counter for fifty cents, Dowd declared that at the most the sandwich cost two or two and a quarter cents to put out.

"This organization," he declared, "started in one room in 1911 and today controls properly assessed at $800,000. They say they are not making any money worth talking about on school lunches, but three years ago a big chain lunch system in Boston offered $50,000 for the concession in Boston schools."

Councilor Norton of Hyde Park, although declaring that he does not see how the Union can make money on the lunches indicated he will file an order calling for a thorough investigation by the school committee.

FEDERAL JUDGE SCORES FIRING

Providence, R. I., March 21 (AP)—Characterizing the action of the coast guard in firing 470 machine gun bullets at the rum runner Eaglet as "a rather sad commentary on administration of law in this country," Federal Judge Leith today, in charging a jury which heard smuggling conspiracy evidence against seven members of the crew, denounced the practice of using bullets to stop rum runners.

"I know of no practice or law which warrants the coast guard to open a machine gun on a boat for the purpose of signaling," Judge Leith said. "The one-pounder has customarily been used."

George Davidson, Edmund O. Sunderland, Leroy W. Fidler, George McGraw, Patrick Cowen and George Sunderland, all of Tiverton, are the seven whose fate was placed in the hands of the jury. Fidler and Edmund C. Sunderland were wounded during the firing off Sakonnet Point Aug. 8. The Eaglet burst into flames.

SOLONS PAY CUT HOWLED DOWN

Like the man who lighted a match to inspect his gas tank, Rep. George F. Brooks of Worcester asked solons at the State House to vote themselves a 10 per cent cut today.

What a storm broke!

"I am aware that I am about to speak on a subject my colleagues will not care to listen to——"

That was about as far as Brooks got when the din broke. Three times in the first five minutes the gavel of Speaker Saltonstall rapped for order.

Tradition was upheld in Cambridge today.

Reluctant to lose the gas lamps that have adorned streets for decades, scores of persons, both from the exclusive sections in the upper districts and the lower Cambridgeport section, stormed Cambridge City Hall to protest, at a hearing, the removal of the lamps.

The hearing was held before the Pole and Conduit Commission, comprising Superintendent of Streets William R. McMenimen, John Quinn, chairman of the License Commission, and Timothy C. O'Hearn, city electrician.

Five city wards were represented at the hearings, Wards 7, 8, 9, 10, in the upper district, and Ward 2 in the Cambridgeport section, comprising persons from exclusive streets bordering the Brattle st. district, Grozier rd., Mellen st. and others. From the lower section came persons from Moore st.

CURLEY NOT TO RUN AGAINST GOV. ELY

American people may be relieved of intolerable conditions.

Several times he diverted from his prepared address, with sallies at his political enemies which drew applause and laughter.

One of these remarks was:

"What right has he (Smith) to come in here without a single delegate from any state, at the behest of Donahue and under the sinister influence of Coakley, to divide the party?"

TELLS OF 1928 PACT

Referring to the Democratic peace pact of 1928, he said:

"At that time men became united who had not spoken to one another for 20 years, including Fitzgerald and myself, and Fitzgerald and Tague. All buried the hatchet, while for years they had been burying it in each other's skulls."

Reports were widely circulated today that there was still a chance of compromise between the Roosevelt and Smith cohorts here.

Mayor Curley made another diversion from his prepared speech when he invited Gov. Ely to step forward, if in the hall, to explain why he advocated a 10 per cent salary cut for state employes.

He invited the opposition to speak at the forum, if they desire to.

DEAL REFUSED, HE SAYS

He said he had been willing to support a slate of delegates to vote for Smith until it was shown he could not be nominated, after which the delegates should turn to Roosevelt, but the opposition refused.

He declared that in his belief Smith was not a candidate, and he said the opposition was attempting to prevent the people from obtaining the relief they would get under Franklin D. Roosevelt as president.

Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville caused prolonged applause when he predicted that Roosevelt would be placed in nomination at the convention by Alfred E. Smith.

PRAISES CURLEY.

James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Roosevelt, read a power of attorney sent him by his father authorizing him to put the governor officially in the race here. He filed it later at the State House.

Young Roosevelt praised Mayor Curley for his work in the campaign and for his statement about the governorship.

"The present situation," he said, "is caused by the efforts of a small group to make you think you're voting for Smith, when in reality you are giving them a chance to trade for votes on the convention floor."

"At the outset," said the mayor, "I desire to state emphatically that my interest in the campaign is actuated solely by the desire to provide the necessary relief for the citizenship of America from the intolerable industrial conditions that promise to continue until proper leadership in the nation has been made possible.

"I am not a candidate for Governor, and would not accept the nomination even though it were tendered me without a contest.

REFUSED IN 1930.

"Such a tender and agreement was made in 1930 through the late lamented Sherman L. Whipple, and I refused because of a promise made in the Smith campaign in 1928 to support John F. Fitzgerald for Governor when all the warring factions were brought together.

"At no time have the friends of Franklin D. Roosevelt been unwilling to agree to an honorable compromise in the interests of party unity and I am desirous that the electorate of Massachusetts understand our position thoroughly.

"The proposition was submitted that if the Donahue group was agreeable that one-half the delegates and alternates at large be selected by the friends of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and that the district delegates and alternates be permitted to contest, the delegates elected would vote in the convention for Alfred E. Smith until such time as he had been nominated or, in the opinion of a majority of the delegates, had been eliminated as a candidate.

LOYALTY TO SMITH

"And in the event that he was not nominated, that later he had been eliminated, the delegation would divide as a unit for the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt until it shall either been nominated or, in the opinion of a majority of the delegates, had been eliminated as a candidate.

"In a crisis such as confronts the American nation at the present time, the concern of the American people should be as to the methods of providing relief from economic conditions rather than paying tribute of affection to any individual.

"From the standard of loyalty and service to Alfred E. Smith, when a candidate in 1924 and 1928, I yield to no man, having contributed freely of time, energy and money for the promotion of his success.

"In the present contest, it is accepted that the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, an outstanding progressive, would mean his election. A complete cross section of the country where primaries have been held emphasizes this fact.

"Under date of Feb. 9, former Governor Smith said: 'Nothing in the statement I gave out to the papers can be interpreted as an announcement that I am a candidate. All I said was that I would accept the nomination if the convention chooses me. Now a candidate is a man who seeks the support of delegates and makes a campaign. I'm not going to do either.'

"When his attention was directed not only to the inconsistency in the permission for the use of his name in Massachusetts, but the possibility of serious injury to Democratic unity as a consequence of such action, Mr. Smith stated he gave his assent to the use of his name here solely on the understanding that it was a 'technical requirement' to permit his friends to express their sentiment and goodwill toward him.

RESPONSIBILITY IS SMITH'S

"The group headed by Mr. Donahue, opposing Franklin D. Roosevelt, in their desire to capitalize the name of Alfred E. Smith, apparently stand ready to attempt to prevent the American people from securing the measure of relief that is possible through a courageous, constructive, program for Alfred E. Smith until such time as he had been nominated or, in the opinion of a majority of the delegates, had been eliminated as a candidate.

"Mr. Donahue and his associates have attempted not only a colossal but an impossible task in their endeavors to convince the public that former Gov. Smith is a bona fide candidate, when the delegation in his own state is an unpledged one and no serious contest with a prospect of success is being waged in behalf of Alfred E. Smith in any other state in the Union.

"With 16,000,000 persons unemployed leader in the person of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"If the only purpose is, as former Gov. Smith states it, that his name on the ballot shall serve as an opportunity for expression of sentiment and good will, and the success of the outstanding Democrat in America for the presidency is jeopardized, then he alone as leader of the party is responsible for the injury that may ploved in America, a number more than three times as great as in 1930, it is folly to ask support of a candidate for President on the grounds of friendship or sentiment, and the friends of Franklin D. Roosevelt do not ask the support of any individual on these grounds."

The Mayor then cited Gov. Roosevelt's record of accomplishment as chief executive of New York. The forum will hold meetings every day at 12:30, except Saturdays and Sundays, until the primaries, April 26.

BIG CROWD LISTENS TO CURLEY AT ROOSEVELT FORUM

Some of the hundreds that jammed into Washington st. in front of the Roosevelt-for-President Forum today listening to Mayor Curley and others talk through the loud speakers. More than 1500 thronged inside, using every available seat and standing at the rear and in the aisles. 'ILLEGAL SMITH NOTE' AGAIN IN COURT

New York, March 21 (AP)—The "Tiger Room" conference, at which, it is charged, a number of the friends of Alfred E. Smith in the summer of 1928, on the promise they would never have to pay, signed a blanket note to $225,000 to cover up illegal contributions to his campaign fund, was in the courts again today.

Supreme Court Justice John Ford reserved decision on a motion by the County Trust Co., which, it is charged, advanced the money to the Smith campaign, to vacate a previous court order whereby Timothy J. Mara, who says he was one of the signers, was to be permitted to examine Oria R. Kelly, president of the company, before trial of the company's $50,000 suit against Mara.

The County Trust Co. is suing Mara and Patrick F. Kenny, a Yonkers plumbing contractor, for $50,000 and $20,000, respectively, on notes which they signed in 1928 and 1929, and which they have not paid.

Mara and Kenny both said they signed the notes to cover up illegal contributions from the County Trust Co. to Smith's campaign fund, and that they were told that they signed that they would never have to make good on them.

Yesterday, held by the defendants—and denied by John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman—is that in 1928 they were summoned to the "Tiger Room," a recreation

There, they say, a number of Smith's friends signed a blank note for $225,000 to the County room maintained by William F. Kenny, millionaire contractor and intimate friend of the former governor, in an office building he owns in West 23rd st. It is called the "Tiger Room" because it is decorated with pictures of tigers. Trust Co., of which the late James J. Riordan, also a close friend of Smith, was president. This was done, they say, "to accommodate Raskob," who was supposed to make good the notes later. Some time later, they say, the $225,000 blanket note was split up, so that Mara signed a note for $50,000, and Kenny, who is no relation of William F. Kenny, signed one for $20,000.

Both say they never received any of the money. They both have said that Governor Smith was entirely unaware of the transaction.

Part of Woman's Head Found Frozen on B. & A. Brakebeam

Springfield, March 21 (AP)—Police and B. & A. railroad employes are seeking to establish the identity and locate the body of a woman, part of whose head was found by a car inspector frozen to the brake beam of a passenger coach here.

Dr. C. A. Schilander, associate medical examiner, was able to say only that the woman appeared to have been of middle age with dark hair.

The train of which the car was a part operates between Boston and Albany and return, and there is no apparent means of determining where the fatality occurred.

Store Robbers Get $166 in Chelsea

Two store breaks in Chelsea netted thieves $166 in merchandise over the week-end. The first was reported by Patrolman Butler after he found the show window broken in the jewelry store of Daniel Smith on Broadway. Watches, rings, beads and pendants valued at $158 were taken.

The store of Benjamin Klentock of Second st. was entered and $9 worth of candy taken.

MAN IS DEAD OF PIPE SPARKS

Haverhill March 21—Frank Hunt, 75, died today at Gale hospital from burns received last night despite his wife's desperate effort to save him.

He was wrapped in a blanket, smoking his pipe, and his wife was reading a newspaper to him, in their home at 31 Winter st.

Sparks from the pipe ignited the blanket. Mrs. Hunt beat out the flames but not before the aged man was seriously burned.

Dr. Walter Card, city physician, was called to treat him, but his efforts were futile.

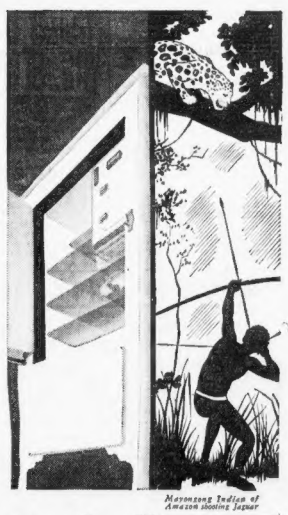
...means better cooling for your foods



A surplus of cooling power is always in reserve with Rollator Refrigeration... it's there for emergencies, for better day to day results and for added years of usefulness from your Norge.

The exclusive Norge Rollator mechanism is powered to freeze ice and give normal refrigeration even in the torrid zone. This means better cooling for your foods... no matter how hot the weather or the kitchen. It means economy, too. For the Rollator is so powerful that it can do its work easily, consuming a minimum of electric current.

And extra cooling power is not the only reason for choosing Norge Rollator Refrigeration... there are a multitude of exclusive and original Norge conveniences.

The new Icevoir is one. It makes ice bars, quickly frozen, easy to remove. Then there is the Watervoir to keep a gallon of cold water on tap. The new Preservoir is for extra cold storage.

Any one of these makes it worth while for you to see the Norge before you buy.

THE ROLLATOR • The exclusive Norge Rollator mechanism is simple, with only three moving parts. It is actually just a roller slowly revolving in a permanent bath of protective oil.... almost everlasting.

DONAHUE HIT AS "LENIN"

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Chairman Frank J. Donahue, of the Democratic State Committee, arbiter of the Smith slate of delegates, is denounced as a "new Lenin" in a statement issued by James J. Brennan, of Charlestown, Democratic member of the Governor's Council.

Paying his respects to David I. Walsh and other office holders supporting Smith, Brennan, a Roosevelt delegate candidate declared that "all the political humpty-dumpties in Massachusetts cannot deceive and hoodwink the aroused American electorate."

Summed up in one word, he stated, the great issue of the campaign is "bread."

Brennan asserting that if Smith was an active for the nomination at the convention, he would be supporting him as enthusiastically as he did four years ago.

"When he says he is not a candidate for President, I believe he is telling the truth," he continued. "The best proof that he is sincere in this matter is the fact that in only two states of the Union has his name been used. Certainly he would seek delegates in all of the states, if he were an actual candidate.

"The conclusive proof of his non-candidacy is his own state of New York, where there is no organized movement to secure delegates pledged to ex-Governor Smith. Surely New York politicians and the New York people are as politically wise as we are. There is no fanatical display of campaigning in New York state such as we have confronting us in Massachusetts."

CURLEY FORUM OPENS

Brennan challenged anyone "to question the fidelity of Franklin D. Roosevelt or any man on the Roosevelt delegation in Massachusetts as to their devotion to Governor Smith."

With the formal opening today of the Roosevelt-for-President forum by Mayor Curley at 333 Washington st., and a women's headquarters in the Dutch room at the Hotel Touraine, the campaign for the New York governor will get into high speed.

ELY DECLINES

Mayor Curley has invited Smith supporters to appear at the forum meetings and explain their reasons for being for Smith.

Governor Ely, who was given the first invitation with a request that he tell why he advocates a 10 per cent salary reduction for state employes, will not take advantage of the opportunity, it was learned today.

GARNER LAUDED FOR STAND ON POWER ISSUE

Washington, March 21—The splendid record of Speaker John N. Garner on the power issue won him commendation today from one of the outstanding progressive organizations of the country.

Analyzing the views of prospective presidential nominees, Judson King, director of the National Popular Government League, found black marks" against all except Speaker Garner and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

BEST ALL RECORDS.

King made public the results of his long research in a pamphlet setting forth at length what the candidates have actually said and done on this paramount campaign issue.

President Hoover was dismissed as a "power trust" President, while the same label was pinned on Newton D. Baker, prominently mentioned for the Democratic nomination.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland was described as even more favorable to the power interests than Hoover. The record of former Gov. "Al" Smith was approved in some points and strongly disapproved in others.

The most significant part of the King pamphlet was a foreword signed by 15 progressive senators and 22 House members warning that the power trust is seeking to control the nominees for President.

"The plain inference was that many of these progressives will be guided in their support of a presidential candidate by his record on power.

PRAISE FOR GARNER

While Roosevelt's stand on the power issue has been one of his principal assets in campaigning for convention delegates in the West and South, the fact that Speaker Garner has steadfastly upheld the public interest in supporting measures like Boulder Dam and the Norris Muscle Shoals bill has been little known.

For that reason the King survey is expected to increase his prestige immensely among progressives of both parties.

In summing up Garner's record the King pamphlet said:

"He would sign such measures as the Norris Muscle Shoals bill and select appointees to various positions dealing with power having the public viewpoint. As to measures like the federal regulation of interstate mergers, prediction cannot be made at present. He has agreed with members of the House to express no opinions while Speaker of the House upon controverted questions."

Barnstable Bank Cashier Is Held

Harry I. Gifford of New Bedford, cashier of the Barnstable County National Bank of Hyannis, pleaded not guilty today to a federal indictment charging him with manipulating $10,000 of the bank's funds for his own purposes. He was held in $1000 bail by Judge Lowell.

James S. Goulding, operator of a New Bedford and Providence yarn mill and alleged co-conspirator of Gifford, also pleaded not guilty and was held in $1500 bail.

EARNINGS RISE AS JOBS DROP

Washington, March 21 (AP)—A drop of three-tenths of one per cent in industrial employment for February was partly offset by a gain of one-tenth of one per cent in the earnings of the workers, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

The figures compared with the previous month showed manufacturing employment gaining 1.2 per cent and wage earnings 2.1 per cent. Bituminous coal mining, telegraph and telephone companies, crude petroleum operators all experienced decreases in number employed together with small gains in earnings. Hotels and canning plants, as well as manufacturing, reported gains in employment and earnings, while all other classes showed decreases under both headings.

Reported manufacturing establishments set operation at 87 per cent of full time, a gain of one per cent for the month.

FLOYD GIBBONS FETED IN TOKIO

Tokio, March 21 (INS)—Floyd Gibbons, famed "headline hunter," who covered the Far Eastern crisis for International News Service, was guest of honor at a tea in the American Club here today prior to his departure for the United States.

Floyd Gibbons

Representatives of the Japanese army, navy and foreign office and Japanese newspapermen were among those present. Gibbons expressed his appreciation of official Japanese cooperation during his recent coverage of events in Manchuria and Shanghai.

Gibbons spent half an hour at the American embassy conferring with Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes. Forbes is leaving tomorrow for San Francisco aboard the liner President Coolidge.

Gibbons also plans to sail for home aboard the Empress of Japan from Yokohama tomorrow. He will stop off at Honolulu for a few days and board the President Coolidge when it arrives there.

Tom Mix and Circus Star Remarried

Yuma, Ariz., March 21 (AP)—Tom Mix, screen and circus cowboy, has made sure there can be no question about his marriage to Mabel Hubbell, circus aerialist. The couple were married first last Feb. 15 at Mexicali, Mexico. Saturday night Mix, with Fred Kohler as best man, and Mrs. Mix, with Lois Wilson as bridesmaid, were remarried here.

Zeppelin Passes Gibraltar Strait

Gibraltar, March 21 (INS)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, bound from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Pernambuco, Brazil, passed the Strait of Gibraltar at 4:02 o'clock this afternoon.

She previously had been reported over Palma on Majorca Island, where she flew so low passengers waved their handkerchiefs at people in the streets.

Urge Tariff on Cotton

Washington, March 21 (AP)—A tariff on cotton was demanded in a petition read to the Senate today at the request of Senator Ashurst, (D.) Arizona, from nearly 300 citizens in his State.

SOVIETS SHOOT DOWN WOMEN

Bucharest, Rumania, March 21 (AP)—Reports reaching here from Rumanian villages on the Ukrainian border today said a number of women were shot down by Soviet troops in a "bloody Sunday" while defending their churches.

In the village of Tasluk, across the river from the Rumanian village of Kitzani, they said, Soviet soldiers attempted to destroy a church and were faced by a crowd of 200 women. The soldiers fired machine guns and killed and wounded several, the reports said.

Another report from the Rumanian military post at Mihaiveteaux said the Soviet soldiers "could be clearly seen" shooting down 35 peasants, including several women, while the latter were trying to defend the Holy Cross in the village square at Buturaga, where the soldiers were destroying religious emblems.

Du Pont, Dancer, to Wed Heiress

Chicago, March 21 (AP)—Announcement of the engagement of Paul du Pont, 26, former German ballet dancer and now courtier to the fashionable set, and Miss Rachel W. Strawbridge, Philadelphia heiress, was made today.

The rumored engagement was confirmed by du Pont, who said the wedding would take place April 24 at his Southern home near Pensacola, Fla. Present plans, he said, were for 20 friends to drive to Florida, leaving here about April 16.

2 Rescued After 8 Days in Small Boat

Miami, Fla., March 21 (AP)—Eight days of drifting far at sea in a small boat, food and water gone, and then when hope had all but fled, a rag soaked in gasoline and ignited by sparks from a storage battery brought rescue.

These were the experiences related today by Frank Oxenfelt and George Mabry. They were brought in by a coast guard cutter, which took them from the rescue ship, Cuyampa.

Gifts Near Death Held Non-Taxable

Washington, March 21 (INS)—The Supreme Court today held unconstitutional provisions of the 1926 revenue act that declare gifts made within two years of the donor's death shall be presumptive evidence that they were in contemplation of death and therefore subject to the federal estate tax.

The court answered a certified question from the third circuit court in the case of the estate of John B. Donnan of Pennsylvania, which sued to recover $47,733.

Youth Held in Effort to Rob 'Phone Box

George Whitley, 21, of Green st., West End, was found guilty by Judge Duff, in municipa court today, of attempted larceny from a telephone pay station.

Patrolman Thomas M. Murphy testified he saw Whitley push a paper napkin in a telephone at 69 Appleton st. The defendant had a dole card from the City Welfare Department and three meal tickets when arrested. Judge Duff continued the case until Thursday.

CHINESE AGREE TO SUSPEND BOYCOTT

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Shanghai, March 21—China today opened the way to formal peace concessions by making a major concession to Japan, just as the atmosphere along the front between the two hostile armies appeared to be again reaching the breaking point.

The Chinese concession consists of a decision to drop the anti-Japanese boycott during the formal armistice and subsequent roundtable peace negotiations, it was reliably reported.

The Chinese refused to accept it as a condition to withdraw but it is understood they will voluntarily call off the boycott as soon as Japanese troops are withdrawn from their present line extending from 12 to 18 miles out of Shanghai.

The joint commission proposed to supervise this withdrawal will consist of four Japanese, four Chinese and four neutrals, representatives of the United States, France, Italy and England. Until the final peace agreement is reached, the evacuated area is to be policed by a special Chinese constabulary with foreign advisers.

Princess' Life-Sized Playhouse Burns En Route to Her

Llandogo, Wales, March 21 (AP)—The life-sized playhouse which the Welsh people built for little Princess Elizabeth, granddaughter of King George, was destroyed by fire today as it was being taken to London to be presented to her.

It burned along the roadside near here in spite of all the efforts of a bucket brigade formed by the villagers.

The model of a Welsh cottage, believed to be the finest of its kind ever built, was being hauled on a trailer from Cardiff to London by a steam tractor. It was intended to be presented to the princess on her sixth birthday next month.

20 FLEE A BLAZE IN MAINE HOTEL

Richmond, Me., March 21 (INS)—For four hours the business section of the town was endangered today by a fire that destroyed the 75-year-old Richmond Hotel. Twenty guests were driven to the street in night clothing.

The loss was estimated at $20,000.

WRECKED MAIL PLANE FOUND IN RIVER

Steubenville, O., March 21—Wreckage of an airplane, including wheels, a wing, a flying suit, moccasins and six mail bags, were found floating in the Ohio river near here today.

Authorities believed the wreckage was that of an eastbound Northrup plane which vanished early today during a severe storm in eastern Ohio. Hal George of Columbus was piloting the ship and Dr. Carol Skinner Cole of St. Louis was a passenger.

Ezra Vandine, Government employe at the river lock, found the articles. He notified Postmistress Enda Gibson. The latter ordered the mail bags kept at the Riverview Country Club until officials of the Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., arrived to attempt to identify the equipment.

Dr. Ritvo to Speak

Dr. Max Ritvo, assistant roentgenologist at Boston City Hospital, will address the Boston Society of Radiographer's, Inc., at its March meeting tomorrow night at 37 E. Concord st.

LOMBARDI TRIO FREED IN GUSTIN GANG DEATH

Joseph Lombardi, Salvatore Congemi and Franco Cucchiara, all of the North End, were cleared of any blame today in the slaying of Frank Wallace, Gustin gan leader, and Bernard J. "Dodo" Walsh, his bodyguard and aide.

After weeks of intermittent hearings, the Suffolk County Grand Jury returned "no bills" against the three, who have been held without bail on lower court warrants charging them with the murders.

The report of the grand jury came after three final witnesses had been heard today—Medical Examiner George B. Magrath, Capt. Charles J. Van Amburgh, State ballistics expert, and Police Sergt. Harry Butler of the Hanover st. station.

Timothy J. Coffey, who was exonerated a number of weeks ago but who was declared by police to have accompanied the Gustin gangsters to the North End, held up the grand jury investigation for a month when he refused to answer questions.

Following the grand jury report, police announced Miss Elizabeth Franklin, a stenographer, into whose office Wallace reeled and died, and who has been under constant police guard at the Copley-Plaza since the shooting, will be guarded no longer.

For 24 hours a day since the double slaying, Miss Franklin, a stenographer for Julius Wolfson, an attorney with an office near the scene of the killings, has been guarded by Policewomen Irene McAuliffe and Agnes Callahan.

TRAPPER TELLS OF LADDER IN KIDNAPING

Hopewell, N. J., March 21—Most mysterious of all clues in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping is the three-sectioned ladder. Was it actually used by the kidnaper to get to the nursery window, or merely as a "blind" to cover up an inside job? Oscar Bush, keen-eyed trapper, of Sourland, and first layman called in on the case by Col. Lindbergh, told in previous instalments of this exclusive story of how he trailed the baby thief's frosted footprints. Now he tells what he found in his investigation of the ladder.

By Oscar Bush

When we lost the ghost trail of Featherbed Lane I burns back to the Lindbergh house again, to satisfy myself of a few more details up there.

or I'd seen the ladder, and I'd seen the trail, but I wasn't sure yet that either was really used in stealing the little boy. What I wants to take a better look at is the window that was broke into, and the room where the child was.

But I want to approach that room like the kidnaper approached it—from the outside.

TAKES LADDER OUT

We takes the ladder from the front hall, and carries it beneath the window again.

There in the clay mud under the window was the marks where it had been stood. I bends over and examines them very closely.

Now the first thing you notice about these round holes the ladder left in the mold was this. The kidnaper had changed his mind where to set the thing, and has moved it over a little. And the second time he set it down the right leg of the ladder set in the same hole where the left leg had been, so that the two times made just three holes in the mud, the center one being a little bigger.

The next thing that strikes you is that none of the holes is very deep—only about an inch that the upright went into the ground. That's not much, providing a very heavy weight was put on the thing.

The most interesting thing was the length of the ladder, stretched to the window sill. As I said ready, it was in three sections, set fitted into each other.

Now two of those sections didn't fetch the window sill, and the three sections joined came to the middle of the window. If the shutters was open, it would rest against the glass pane.

NOTICES DEFECT

I goes to put my foot on the ladder to climb up, but it makes up my mind it wouldn't hold me, and also I notice a small split in the uprights at the bottom of the upper section.

But the ladder had to be pretty weak to split from a fall in the mud. I believes it split under the weight of someone that went up it, the timbers not being well nough braced.

Instead of trying to mount that ladder I has Lindbergh for another one, that we brings up and places in the same position. Up that ladder I climbs and looks in at the window.

The ladder I was using reached just to the window sill so I could take a look at the shutters. There was no mark on either of them, such as might have been made if one had been closed and the kidnapers' ladder rested against it.

But the shutter was a little warped, so that it might not have closed and locked properly. And Lindbergh tells me that Betty Gow says the shutters wasn't locked that night on that account.

SEE NO JIMMIE

The kidnaper had pried the window after him when he left, but he hadn't had to jimmie because it hadn't been locked either. The house wall is about a foot and-a-half thick, and the sill of the window is almost that wide. Setting back below the window inside is a long low cedar chest on top of which is a large black leather suitcase, and on top of that a baby's thinker toy, one of those jointed wooden rabbits on wheels that kids pulls around by a string. If the kidnaper had knocked that down on the floor it would have made a lot of noise.

I goes carefully over that window sill for the mark of a footprint, but there isn't even a speck of mud to be seen, neither on the cedar box and the suitcase.

The man that got into that window had to be pretty smart on his toes. For he must have left the ladder, slid into the room, and on nursery floor, without even gazing into bureau.

But here's the baffling thing. Coming back, like going in, the kidnaper must have left that cedar chest and suitcase and taken off with child weighing 40 or 50 pounds in his arms, and without leaving the least smudge from his foot or hands on the window frame.

Standing on the ladder, with the boy along over his shoulder asleep, and being careful not to wake him, he must have got that note he had written out of his pocket, placed it on the sill where the Lindbergh found it, and then closed the window after him, to prevent its getting blowed away by the wind.

Could anybody do that?

I'm not sure of it.

Oscar Bush will tell you tomorrow more of what he observed and of the conclusions he drew concerning the crime.

'The Crime That Couldn't Happen' » » The Lindbergh Mystery

Chisel, Whether Fair Clue or False, Is Enigma

By WIN BROOKS
CHAPTER IV

The abandoned chisel is the second of the two important clues in the Lindbergh kidnaping mystery and perhaps it is more important than the ladder in the development of theory.

We can try to determine its use or intended use by the kidnaper and why it was left behind and whether it points to any particular type of criminal.

This is a wooden-handled tool with a blade approximately an inch wide. Its edge is keen, but it is not by any means a new tool. Experts say it is probably six or seven years old.

It has been tested in wood similar to the soft pine used in construction of the ladder, and its work is consistent with the cutting of the mortises for rungs in two sections of the ladder. The tests indicate it was the tool used, and we can proceed on that basis, that the tool was the kidnaper's, and its first use was construction of the ladder.

But the ladder wasn't made underneath the nursery window where chisel and ladder were found, so there must have been another reason for the presence of the chisel at the scene of the crime.

An Amateur's Tool
Chisel Could Have Been There for Two Uses

There is no evidence that it WAS used at the scene.

It could have been taken to the house for use either as a tool or as a weapon.

It is intended use was as a tool we may draw certain conclusions, right or wrong from that. The only tool that the kidnaper might require at the scene would be one to force entrance to the nursery.

From that we may theorize that the kidnaper did not know it would be unnecessary to force an entrance to the house and thus the chance of his having had an inside contact are diminished.

But we can go farther than that along the same line. If the chisel were a tool to be used in forcing entrance, may we not eliminate a certain class of criminal?

For instance, a chisel is not the type of tool upon which a professional burglar or housebreaker would depend to force a shutter or a window. It is more the tool of the amateur.

For forcing jobs in which leverage is needed, a professional uses a jimmy. No less than 14 types of such jimmies are manufactured by one company, each of each diminutive size that a handle is supplied for leverage. The jimmy is a quiet weapon.

Professionals do make use of chisels occasionally in housebreaking, but they are used for cutting purposes and they are noisy, certainly too noisy for use on a nursery window.

And chisels are sometimes used to cut putty and glass, but again in the window frame, but the expert uses a thin-bladed knife.

Last Resort Weapon
Chisel Could Have Been From Tool-Kit

So now if we have the chisel intended for use as a tool we have the kidnaper more or less of an amateur.

But perhaps the chisel left behind was only one tool in a well-filled burglar-kit. The chance that that was so seems very vague, for the chisel must have been out ready for use—it must have dropped from a pocket or a hand—and if the well-filled kit of burglar's tools had been available, then you have a real professional and it is probable some other tool than the chisel would have been the one left behind.

If the chisel were taken along by the kidnaper for use as a weapon it was certainly a weapon of the crudest type. A man might plan to defend himself with a chisel if no other weapon, gun or knife were available. If the chisel were a weapon then surely the kidnaper was neither gangster nor professional criminal.

Therefore we have established in theory that regardless of whether the chisel was taken to the scene for use as tool or weapon, the man who had it was more or less of an amateur.

It is more logical, of course, to believe that the chisel was to be put to its normal use, as a tool, and speculating from that point it may be possible to reach a logical conclusion as to how it happened to be left behind and whether that is important.

The guess has been made that the kidnaper climbed his ladder with the chisel in his hand and finding that the shutter was not locked dropped his tool to the ground. That may have been the case, although this is a situation in which noise of any kind is dangerous to success of the crime.

Perhaps the kidnaper, finding the chisel was not needed, placed it upon the window sill and knocked it off either while climbing in through the window or climbing out. Perhaps it fell from his pocket.

If it did fall, either accidentally or purposely, is it not strange that it was not picked up by a confederate at the foot of the ladder? And thus negatively, is introduced for the first time in this discussion the possibility that the kidnaper had a confederate.

The reason the chisel was left behind seems important only from that standpoint, UNLESS it was left behind as a "red herring"—as a false clue, either to give the impression that there was no contact within the house that knew the shutter need not be forced, or to give the impression that the job was not a professional job.

And right there we run into all sorts of possible complications involving both the ladder and the chisel which, although apparently two good clues, have failed to get police anywhere in this case.

Perhaps they are not only two good clues but two TOO good clues. But we cannot lose sight of the fact that there was a kidnaping, and that the kidnaper undoubtedly used a ladder, and that he probably carried a tool with which, if necessary, to force entrance.

It is easy to get bogged down in the matter of false clues, and I think we must proceed on the belief that all the physical clues turned up by police are genuine clues and not "red herrings" or "pepper on the trail."

In which case, we must believe the chisel was left behind accidentally.

Now, the chisel clue's slight negative indication that the kidnaper had no confederate is counteracted to some extent by the ladder.

We may argue that there was only one kidnaper because the ladder was left behind and the chisel was not retrived after it had fallen from the window or the ladder; and because a lone kidnaper, carrying a baby, would hesitate before encumbering himself with a ladder.

Yet in this case there is evidence that the kidnaper started to carry the ladder away, for it was taken down from against the house, and it was dissembled, and in the dissembling of its sections one section was split. Perhaps the splitting caused a noise that resulted in hasty abandonment of the ladder.

Still there is no definite contradiction of the theory that only one kidnaper was involved. For one man with the baby in his arms, could have taken this light ladder down from the house and could have dissembled it with one hand (perhaps this awkward procedure caused the splitting).

It may be argued that, although the ladder was light enough to be carried in one hand, its three sections made it an awkward one-hand burden. The only thing we really KNOW is that neither one, nor two, nor three, nor a half-dozen kidnapers DID take it away. So we are right back where we started, without any positive indication yet, from either the ladder or the chisel, that more than one kidnaper was involved.

Therefore, we must kept an open mind at this stage of conjecture regarding the possibility of there having been two or more kidnapers, and wait until we go into the other clues before reaching a theoretical conclusion.

"Inside" Assistant?
Nothing Thus Far to Prove There Was One

We have seen where the chisel is contradictory to the theory that there was a contact within the house knowing there was no necessity for forcing entrance, but there still remains the fact that the abduction was accomplished through the only one of three windows left unsecured and that the ladder was first placed at any other window.

Perhaps we can explain this further to lessen the appearance of an "inside job." There are three windows in the nursery from which Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen. Two are one one side of an L and the third on the end of the L in the rear of the house.

Beneath the window on the end is a wide, walled paved court. To use this window the kidnaper would have had to climb the wall with his ladder and set its end on such a slippery surface and one that might cause a scraping noise. He would naturally have avoided that. That leaves the two side windows from which he must have made his choice.

The shutters or blinds of these windows were drawn, as were those of the end window, and behind the shutters the windows were open to allow fresh air into the nursery. But the shutter nearest the end of the L was not locked because it couldn't be locked.

There are slide bolts on the inside of the shutters similar to slide bolts used to fasten doors, and one of these blinds is badly warped or sagged on its hinge that when it was swung shut it would not completely close and the bolt could not be slid.

If this shutter was not completely shut it must have been slightly ajar. There was a moon that night. The house is white. The shutters are dark. Anyone with any sort of good eyesight must have been able to have seen that that particular shutter was not locked.

So it cannot be said that there is yet in the development of theory on the basis of the chisel and ladder clues, and the particular choice of the unsecured window, any definite indication of "inside" collusion.

What Is Your Theory?

What is your theory of the Lindbergh kidnaping puzzle which has aroused the entire world, and which has baffled the collected police talent of the entire nation? Your theory is as good as anyone's at this time. Send your idea to the Lindbergh Case Editor, the Boston Evening American.

Theories of Readers

Motive, identity and plans for recovery of the baby are discussed in detail by readers of the Boston Evening American responding to the invitation to present their theories of the mystery of the Lindbergh kidnaping case. Excerpts from some of the many letters follow.

YOUNG AMATEURS

"I think the kidnaping was the work of a couple of young amateurs looking for a thrill. They had a good idea of the interior of the home. I think the baby is well cared for but these amateur kidnapers are more than scared and really do not know the best way to get the baby safely back without being caught."—T. A. P., Haverhill

AL CAPONE AGAIN

"I believe Capone is at the bottom of it. He believes he is serving time unjustly and that his sentence will not be commuted. He is clever and a deep thinker. It is obvious the kidnapers don't want money. I believe the baby is well cared for in an underworld haunt but that he will die if Capone it not freed soon."—Mrs. Leo Benoit, 27 Moore st., West Somerville.

A JAPANESE?

"Could the kidnaping have been planned and carried out by Japanese for revenge? The Oriental mind works differently than ours. The continued silence of the kidnapers, makes me fear for the safety for the baby."—Mrs. Lena Bettle, 116 East Ashland st., Brockton.

IN "QUARANTINE"

"I think the baby is within 200 miles of his home, in a private dwelling and impersonating a child who lived there before the kidnaping. I think a family with one "son" moved into this home before the kidnaping and made the child conspicuous and that it was then reported to have contracted a contagious disease, having in reality been spirited away. Then the kidnaped baby was put in its place behind quarantined doors."—Frederick E. Conway, way, 63 Summit ave., Brookline.

AMATEUR CRIMINALS

"Amateur criminals. Well planned and skillfully executed but the kidnapers did not anticipate the furore their act would cause throughout the world. For this reason the criminals have not attempted to restore the child. Let police interest subside and he will be returned."—Oliver J. Cote, 183 Talbot ave., Mosnup, Ct.

CHINATOWN

"Was York's Chinatown is responsible for it. The motive was the suspicion on the part of many Chinese, whether justifiable or not, that Lindbergh's flight to their country was to secure certain information for our government. I fear the baby is dead."—E. L. C., Medford.

SOCIETY GANGSTERS

"Society gangsters who had inside information regarding the family routine. If the baby was not killed within 48 hours of the kidnaping because the gangsters became frightened, he surely will be returned sometime. A small gang in a delicate predicament."—Otis Ong, Harvard rd., Shirely.

A MENTAL CASE

"Money was only a secondary motive. It seems like the work of someone with a mental kink who wanted possession of the baby for the world fame it would bring the "finder," who may turn out to be the kidnaper. His plan has not be carried out because he is too frightened. I believe the child is still near Hopewell."—Mrs. Patricia Leary, 41 Audubon rd., Back Bay.

BY WATER

"Why should the kidnapers run the great risk of trying to get through armies of police when they could escape by water to a hideout previously prepared? This might be in Bermuda or along our own coast or some other country. Rum runners mig figure on a certain amount satisfaction, mixed with reven and profit. Get the Coast Guar busy."—R. B. Henry, Maple Wellesley Park.

MRS. F. MURRAY FORBES, JR.

Talking things over—perhaps how much money was made on the Vincent Ventures—at another table was Mrs. L. B. Carleton Colt and Mrs. John Flint, two of the able executives of the V. C. Mrs. Flint was wearing a new spring hat, flower-trimmed, and most becoming.

• • •

Mrs. Charles Barnes, who was Phoebe Washburn of Worcester, was lunching with her friend, Mrs. Jeff Whitney. Brown was worn by both of these out-of-towners.

Ruth Gibson, who wears sport clothes as jauntily as she does her fancy dress costumes, was also attired in the autumn shade.

Ruby's dancing music was delightful as always. This week he received his two new records brought out by the Victor company—congratulations Ruby—and they are simply SWELL.

Three Peaches

AMONG THE LUCKY POSTDEBS to be invited to this so swanky party was Charlotte Lyman, Lorna Livermore and Martha Means, three peaches who wore white trousers and red shirts and looked like a modern fire brigade.

Peasant Costumes

GAY PEASANT COSTUMES made the scene in the ballroom more colorful and picturesque — Anne Tuckerman wore a lovely one which she picked up in France last year but she refused to wear the headdress as she felt it was not too becoming. She was quite mistaken—she would look well in anything.

Anne Tuckerman

ANOTHER RUSTIC MAID was Nancy Morison and right now let me say that those Morison girls are a very pretty and talented group. And good sports — they go head over heels into everything with SUCH enthusiasm.

• • •

MRS. GORDON ABBOTT, JR., in an adorable Summer Girl in apricot linen and a girdle of blue ribbon on her hair.

Hit in Kilts

AND YOU CAN ALWAYS count on Rachel Warner turning up in something original—she wore the authentic costume of the Scottish Highlanders, kilts and everything, and made a BIG hit.

PICTORIALLY SPEAKING, the Talbot Bakers were perfect—they came as bakers with huge chef hats and aprons and carried LONG—over a yard long they were—loaves of bread. Polly and Talbot are living happily ever after on West Cedar st.

SOME OF THE GIRLS WORE their kimonos and mandarin coats to create the Chinese illusion, which is almost universally becoming. Ellen Cushing looked very Oriental in hers.

A Gallant Gentleman

THE MEN'S COSTUMES were on the whole very handsome or exceedingly funny . . . Alexander (Sandy) Forbes was made up as a dashy gentleman and very gallant he was . . . he offered to tell US sometime what the pitfalls in life to avoid are . . . Yessir.

ALMOST ALL OF THE MEN were so well disguised it was impossible to identify them. We did recognize Mr. Theodore Eliot as a swashbuckling bandit, not only because his pretty wife appeared on the scene at the right moment as a sprightly Spanish senorita.

Gown Ruined

WE RUINED A PERFECTLY choice evening gown dashing hither and thither . . . to say nothing of yon . . . to get pictures and descriptions of everyone present. We, for one, will be glad when trains go out of fashion so we are ALWAYS stepping on ourselves . . . by the end of the evening we look like a manikin for a poverty-charity affair.

IN THE SPRING, ETC . . . Madelyn Phillips and Zad Adams seem together quite a lot . . . ditto . . . Nancy Adams and brother John Phillips.

KATHERINE HOWE BRADLEY and hubby are still honeymooning at Pinehurst, and the Potter Palmers are doing the same in Florida. Mother Movius wired she had cancelled her European trip so they stayed South.

LEADERS TO ATTEND PREMIERE

Nursery School Will Share in Proceeds

Mrs. James Garfield and Mrs. Robert Winsor, Jr., are among those who have taken boxes for the Boston premiere, at the Hollis Street Theater, on Monday evening, April 11, of the Abbey Players, National Theater of the Irish Free State, by which the Nursery Training School will benefit.

Other early subscribers for this particular evening—when not only Lennox Robinson's "The White-Headed Boy," but W. B. Yeats' "Kathleen ni Houlihan" is being offered—are Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. Henry M. Channing, Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney, Mrs. George H. Monks, Mrs. H. C. Sears, Mrs. Edgar Pierce, Mrs. Edmund F. Leland, Miss Alice P. Tapley, Mrs. William Sims, the Misses King, Mrs. George A. Furness, Miss Emily Wolcott.

Among Subscribers

Other subscribers are Mrs. Charles F. Bachelder, Mrs. Frederick P. Lord, Mrs. Charles Storrow, Miss Penelope Noyes, Mrs. Stanley W. Dexter, Miss Jeanette Plache, Mrs. Charles Brewer, Mrs. Arthur H. Morse, Mrs. John S. Ames, Mrs. Frederick C. Hood, Mrs. Thomas H. Payne, Mrs. Walter B. Cannon, Mrs. Francis B. Harrington, Mrs. Chandler Robbins, Mrs. John Balch, Mrs. George M. Nowell, Mrs. James R. Tobert, Mrs. R. R. Branton, Mrs. John Bryant Paine and Mrs. George D. Burrage.

The advance sale of tickets for this benefit is in the hands of Mrs. Erwin H. Schell of 67 Francis ave., Cambridge.

Another Benefit

The younger set is to be particularly to the fore in the benefit performance of the Abbey Players, to be held at the Hollis on Wednesday evening, April 20, when the Women's Educational and Industrial Union will act as sponsors. Irma Marlin of Wigglesworth is chairman of boxes, and Mrs. Edward H. Warren, Jr., Mrs. W. F. Howard and Miss Charlotte Moseley are other Junior League members working with her. The entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth is chairman, . . .

Although invitations for this performance of Lennox Robinson's "The Far Off Hills," a delightful whimsical Irish comedy to be given in Boston for the first time, are not yet out, a number of dinner parties preliminary to the play are already being planned by the committee members.

Dolls Will Be Auctioned

Novel features are being introduced into the plans for the "Folk Music Concert" for the Boston Y. W. C. A. on which board Mrs. Max Talbot is a director.

Dolls typically dressed in their national costumes will shortly be exhibited as miniature reproductions of the brilliant baritone, Schubel, and his associate, Ljubljane, who will make their initial appearance before a Boston audience on April 8 and 9 following a tour to the largest capital cities of Europe. On the evening of the performance the dolls will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Many patronesses are planning dinners to precede the folk songs and dances which are to be given at the Lee Auditorium.

Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, ex-president of the Boston Association, is entertaining the general committee at her home the first of the month, when final plans will be made for the outstanding musical event.

Committee members have entered enthusiastically into the idea of the attraction and are lending all kinds of assistance. Members of the Junior League will act as ushers and flower girls. The evening performance on the 8th will be at 8:30 o'clock, and the Saturday morning one is arranged for children, and will be held at 10:30 o'clock at 140 Clarendon st.

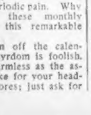
How Do Dancers Manage?



The professional engagements of a dancer make no allowance for the time of month when she may be helpless with pain. Her periodic discomfort must not interfere with her easy, effortless performance. Such women do not "fight" periodic pain, but avoid it. They use Midol and do not suffer even a twinge of periodic pain. Why don't you meet these monthly emergencies with this remarkable modern discovery.

Midol takes pain off the calendar. Monthly martyrdom is foolish. For Midol is as harmless as the aspirin tablet you take for your headache! All drug stores; just ask for Midol.

HEADS MUSIC COMMITTEE

MRS. MAX TALBOT is director of the folk music concert committee, who is sponsoring the initial appearance of Schubelj of the Royal Opera company on April 8 and 9 for the Boston Y. W. C. A. (Bachrach photo.)

BOOKS—and a Number of Things

By G. K. CHESTERTON

LONDON.—I hear that Mr. Aldous Huxley has written a book called "This Brave New World"; about a wholly scientific future; the sort of Utopia in which babies are produced out of incubators without any parents; or nevertheless manages to get divorced without getting married.

I have not read it, but I have enough admiration for Mr. Huxley's intellect to be quite sure that if he has described this sort of thing, he has made fun of it. My only doubt is whether "This Brave New World," this scientific future of invention and innovation, is not already all too old and stale and dead even to be made fun of. It seems almost a pity that a mind like Mr. Huxley should waste his wit on the leavings of Lord Birkenhead, who took the leavings of Professor Haldane, who took the leavings (or at least the traditions) of Mr. H. G. Wells.

But Mr. Huxley's wit is so vivid that it can doubtless say something new and interesting; even about the scientific future of mankind. At least his book is certain to have a wider range than this small note, which touches a much narrower and more trivial point, merely suggested by the name.

But when I see any mention of this sort of scientific futurism, I always wonder why in the world human beings are so blind to the plainest facts of humanity and history. They seem to suppose that men will suddenly begin to do tomorrow the one thing they have never done in all their thousands of recorded years; go forward in a straight line for several centuries in the same direction.

If travel is quick, it will be quicker; if there are many machines, there will be more machines; and so on.

Now, it is perfectly easy to do this; it needs no imagination or invention; any more than saying that one turnip can be multiplied into 10 turnips. The most turnip-headed person could do this; it could be done by a calculating boy or a calculating machine. But as applied to the human story it is simply a lie; like saying that a man must evolve 10 noses because he has evolved 10 toes. Touching the sort of social effect desired, human taste is perpetually burning and changing its course.

To take any trivial case; a social code warns me that I must soon go and get shaved. Do ditties the Futurists will suggest my being shaved by a machine instead of a man; it will make no difference to me, except that when it cuts me, the machine will not apologize. But nothing could be worse nonsense than saying that the human view of hair progresses steadily.

Washington and Jefferson and Franklin were always talking about Nature and a free and simple life. But Washington would no more have grown a beard than let his nails sprout into claws; Franklin would as soon have run about naked or torn up turnips with his teeth.

With the 19th century came a wave of hair, but it has not been a permanent wave. Tennyson and Longfellow had beards; Grant and Lee had beards; even Lincoln had a little beard. It was regarded as a liberation, a natural thing; "the mark of manhood," said one of the Victorians.

Very well; on the theory that progress is one, and liberations grow more liberal, the inference is clear. Mr. Aldous Huxley has a wilder beard than Walt Whitman. Mr. Hoover has a bigger and bushier beard than Lincoln. The younger the boys, the bigger are their beards.

There seems something wrong with this prophecy; but it would have been a perfectly safe scientific prophecy to make 60 years ago.

Elaborate Holy Week Services

After a brilliant Palm Sunday, Catholic and Protestant churches will observe the remaining days of Holy Week with special services to be climaxed by elaborate programs Easter Sunday.

The Greater Boston Federation of Churches will meet daily at noon in Tremont Temple, from today through Thursday, and Friday will hold a three-hour service from noon until 3 o'clock, when seven speakers will commemorate the time spent by Christ on the cross.

At Trinity Church and the Cathedral Church of St. Paul will be daily noon services with a three-hour service Good Friday.

At the Cathedral of the Holy Cross will have chanting of lenten [illegible] Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at 8 o'clock. Cardinal O'Connell will solemnize a solemn pontifical mass on Holy Thursday at 9 o'clock. The mass of the Presanctified will be said at the same hour Friday with a high mass Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

Robert M. Kimball Wins Bridge Award

The New England mixed contract bridge championships, held by the Hawthorne Club at the Copley Plaza Hotel, concluded with Robert M. Kimball winning first prize and Mrs. H. J. O'Meara ranking second.

Mr. Kimball, who is a Boston real estate dealer, is present holder of the New England men's championship, while Mrs. O'Meara reached the semifinals in the recent New York tournament, with her husband as partner.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Prattle and Tattle!

Evelyn Laye's next hubby will be Frank Lawton, the young English actor—in fact, he's ten years younger than the grand looking Evelyn and in mannerisms resembles Sonnie Hale, the Laye gal's deposed spouse now married to Jessie Matthews. If you've read the Broadway columns, you probably know who Thais Giroux is. At any rate, she's the little baby-faced frill who does startling semi-nude dances for Guinan right now. Well, her papsy came here from Butte, Montana, a wk. ago and eloped with Thais' mama, from whom he's been divorced for years. Now here's a typical Broadway situation Jessie Von Stein, divorced from Arthur Von Stein, well known super specialty manufacturer (he recently married Margaret Haller, the blond Scandals beauty), is all set to elope with Charles Hilton, of the clothing Hiltons, some day next week. But before she takes the step, she discussed it with her former hubby and yesterday Arthur met Hilton, lunched and talked it over. The usually placid Monte Brice, motion picture director, has suddenly picked up a flaming ember for Mae Wayne, a dashing, soft-spoken Western beauty, and Stanley Pascal is here eating his heart out for Inez Courtney, still on the Coast. It was an unusual shindig the Hugh Murrays conducted at their home Tuesday night as a birthday gesture for their dtr., Anita—the high spot being Mary Lewis' warble of a special song written for the gal by Lew Gensler, tagged "Anita." Now over in England John Murray Anderson's "How Bells" has passed its 100th performance, profiting for $60,000, and now the Anderson chap is preparing to produce another revue for which one of the sons of the ex-King of Spain has written the music.

I may be wrong, but I don't think there's been a line in the papers here of the recent imprisonment of Robert G. Shaw 3rd, who is Lady Astor's son, Walter O'Keefe, the comic and song writer, is really heart-free now, but his associate and pal, Bobby Dolan, is drooping all over the Ziegfeld orchestra pit with the grand passion for Fay Stewart, the pulchritudinous "Hold-That" sweet. That Jersey Senator, Roy Yates, who lured himself a flotilla of newspaper headlines some months ago in connection with a gal, is now paying attention to the tall Marion Holmes, who parades around in flimsies in the Folies Bergere Revue here. She's a natural red head who wears a blond wig on the street. Among friends of the Robin d'Erlangers will prick up their ears at the news, I suppose, when I received a cable that the d'Erlangers are severing the tie that binds with Robin, who's the son of Baron d'Erlanger, emrring a cabaret gal named Auriol Ross. As a matter of fact, the d'Erlangers fancy stage beauties. Gerrard, the younger brother, for instance, married Edythe Baker, the Cochran girl, when he was 22 and she was 27, and when he was 16 he was all set to wed Delysia. Now that it's settled that Yvonne Hughes has been in town all this time, when everyone thought she was in London and Paris, we learn in addition that the gentleman most constantly with her is Phillip de Stephano, a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve and prominent here politically.

Jack Dempsey, a gentleman of pugilistic renown, has suddenly developed an interest in Dorothy Dell, the Follies gal, phoning her two and three times a day. Dorothy was the lass whose name was associated with Russ Columbo's without benefit of press agent. It seems that originally Hope Williams was scheduled for the Katherine Hepburn part in "The Warrior's Husband," but when she learned that the role called for appearing in what we purists like to term an abbreviated costume, the Williams gal decided that other limbs were better suited for the part. Norma Lee, a pretty girl student at the Columbia School of Journalism, is luring her heart comfort from a young bachelor member of the faculty, and Kay Clark and Betty Gillette, a couple of society buds, protegees of John Hutchins, the lad who sheared his beard some months ago, are off to Hollywood with Warner Bros. contracts tucked under their arms. That Mary Elizabeth Young, featured in a recent movietone here, is really Bettie Macdonald, one of the great army of former Ziegfeld gals. Bettie or Mary, take your choice, tagged "Anita." Now over in England John Murray Anderson's "How Bells" has passed its 100th performance, profiting for $60,000, and now the Anderson chap is preparing to produce another revue for which one of the sons of the ex-King of Spain has written the music.

After they had pictures in all the papers and even went to the trouble of getting a marriage license, Josephine Larkin, the blond English beauty, and Richard Gardiner have called all bets off. But Robert Goldsboro, the warbling lass at El Pablo, and Lennie Hayton, well-known pianist, are plenty absorbed in each other. There was a time, you'll remember, when Roberta was mentioned as a possible successor of Nancy Carroll to the Jack Kirkland name. The flicker, "The Higher Ups," reyaled by Jerry Horwin and Marion Dix, is based on the famous Allen case that rocked Philly some weeks ago. Headaways favorite insurance man is a fella known as George Covey, who makes it a practice of sending you clips about yourself. There'll be no opera in London this summer, Covent Garden being broke. Another Broadway romance. Paul Sperry of the Follies Orchestra, and Ruth Fisher, an Albertina Rasch gal.

It seems certain now that as soon as the red tape connected with her divorce from Jack Pickford will permit, Mary Mulhern will become Mrs. Ed McCarthy. That Thurston Crane Shaw, who played for the Jack and Wife of the University of Pennsylvania, dropped out this year to go on the air, upsetting the boys no end. But what amuses me is that this fellow, who plays female impersonator roles, was the 135-pound intercademy boxing champ. There's going to be a terrific slam at certain society individuals in that cats and dogs yarn scheduled to appear in next month's issue of Taffler and American Sketch. Phil Shil writes in to ask me if I remember the good old days when a gigolo was known as a protege. Sam Shipman, the playwright, is still ailing. If Al Smith is successful in his negotiations, the Empire State will issue 40,000 square feet to a toy manufacturer, but I don't suppose that's half as interesting as the flourishing romance between red-headed Anne Boland and Jack Pepper, who was once the hubby of the red-headed Ginger Rogers. Incidentally, the warbling Grace Brinkley has a favorite mixture you might like. One-third sweet cream, two-thirds ginger ale, topped with a cherry. Well, she said it wasn't a pansy drink! Ben Trask and Ruth Fallows are purring and cooing.

Society Girl to Wed Polo Star

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, March 21 (ITS).—That picturesque city of the Pacific slope, Santa Barbara, will be the scene of a nuptial event on the second day of next month which is of cardinal interest to the fashionables of this city and society in the national capital.

I refer to the wedding of Elena De Struve to that popular English polo star, John Alexander Bullock, who is a member of the Los Indios, Calif., polo team.

For the benefit of those who do not possess extended memories, I might add that Elena, who has spent much time during the past two years in California, is the granddaughter of the widowed Mrs. William A. Slater, Sr., who several years ago built a home on the West Coast to be near her son, "Will" Slater, Jr., once a dashing beau in our racquet club set and who established himself on the Pacific slope after a charming young widow gave him the cold shoulder and married one of his rivals. "Will" took as his bride two years ago Frances Anica, daughter of Mrs. Harry H. Scott of San Francisco.

Elena's late mother, the onetime Eleanor Slater, it will be recalled, was first married to Boris De Struve of a fine Russian family, and at the time of their wedding, down in Washington, he was attached to the Russian Embassy in that city. Following his death, when Elena was a year old, Eleanor Slater De Struve married E. Halsey Malone of this city, who now resides in Mt. Kisco.

The future Mrs. Bullock, who is a great granddaughter of the late John T. Slater, owner of several cotton mills and founder of one of the first and largest Negro schools in the South, had one brother, Boris De Struve, who died early in 1926, shortly after the passing of his mother. Her half-brother, Adrian H. Malone, is a student at the Santa Barbara school in California.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Faith:
Do you suppose we'll ever know
Again the spell of long ago,
When just a handclasp's thrilly joys
Wrought ruin to my equipoise?

When you went weak with happiness
At the most trivial caress?
Do you suppose we'll know once more
The magic of those days of yore?

Of course we shall—Love will not leave us flat:
But it won't be with each other—lay to that!
—The Funny Man.

Baby Coos

April showers may bring May flowers to some—but to Insurance-man Leonard Mordecai it will be a shower of baby smiles and gurgles after Mrs. Mordecai entertains old "Doc" Stork in Newton next month.

Honesty!

Cutest crack of wee Nancy Kelly's, while about towning last week, was about the new movie queen who was telling her old pals how she was doing—while tipping a few cocktails—and became a bit too honest with, "Oh! My dear, I'm indeed doing well . . . Yes, I have a mink coat but no lingerie!"

Lawyers Sans Books

Lawyers at every turn. Saturday night at the opening of the new, intimate "400 Club Tavern" on Kingston st. . . . But no books and not a dull moment . . . Due to the singing, dancing, joking, banjoing and what-not of the three young barrister club promoters—George Broomfield (who was busy calling out "give this girl a big, little hand"), Sam Cohen (who knows what to do with his hands while singing), and Aaron Angelman (who hops from one foot to the other, embarrassed and miserable) . . . In the dim old English Tavern we found young Mr. and Mrs. Sol Stein just back from honeymooning in the Bermuda manner . . . Rep. Julius H. Sobel and Asst. Dist. Atty. David Lasker—doing more handshaking than dancing . . . The George Marens and a happy lot of Brookliners . . . William Hershmann celebrating his passing the bar exams . . . And black-jet gowned attractive Mrs. Cody Goodman of Brookline snitching a dance now and then with her Broomfield sheik, whom he wasn't keeping an eye on things . . . Jim Allen, the only man there in a business suit—and with a red tie . . . The pretty blonde Shirlie Franks, one girl who wears her hair coronet fashion smartly . . . Ben Feinberg, down from Haverhill, dancing attention on Brookline's Elma Liebman—with saucy, wide-cuffed white kid gloves . . . Ted Steele, the Orchestra Wonder, with hair-line mustache and plenty of P. A. (personal appearance, for those who are still in doubt of the abbreviation) . . . Atty. Solomon Goldfarb, who admits he's a Man About Town, with Beacon st's charming Jerry Fossett—simple coiffure about her lovely face . . . And the best scouts of all—"Mickey" Engeman and happy Era Lowitzky—who are never at hands a-plenty and purring about their engagement and lots of fun to wit . . .

Pickups:

When Texas Guinan opens at the Cocoanut Grove next Monday she will have 30 blondes for her gang . . . "Red" Farren has gone song and dance man . . . On the West coast now he is assistant to dance-director Ralph Berkley . . . Wonder if Stanton White recalls whispering the "coming event" to his pals when he was that happy . . . Now he tells the world without it with joy . . . And it was a wee girl at the Phillips House Friday evening . . . Within three hours after our Friday column was printed with our mention of Jack Beauvais' "chicky Bair cut," he phoned us to say he'd taken the tip—and also his barber; . . . We'll check on this at the RKO Bell-Boston this week, where Jack is singing and fretting about it.

About Folks You've Seen

Pretty Dolores Orland writes from Terre Haute, Ind., of not getting over her thrill yet . . . Meeting Glenn Hunter when she was here with the Vanities" . . . And that Chaz Chase and the rest of the Vanity Fairs have all had colds . . . Secret: Them right clothes is what they need!

Lookin' Thru the Mail:

To Girl-About-Town Reader: So you are all a-buzz over Ruth Mose and the black satin pajama-wearing white outing in her time at Miss Sargent's new place on Newbury street, eh . . . Will have to keep tabs thot . . .

To "The Night Fixer": Unusual way of writing letters—"Dear Girl-About-Town-wards and heller shelter . . . How's it done on a typewriter" . . . Will use poem soon . . . Something brewing now for more ordinary folks . . . Why not your aviator why not some up-in-the-air gossip?

To "A Faithful Reader": You've noticed that the news was used . . . Yes, yes, yes, to send in more.

To Lillian Irene: Thank you so much for all those gray-suede-bound Avery Maxims. You Beautiful . . . So, that's how you got that way, eh? More fun looking at the books?

To Marge: Your poem "To Waffy Bertie" we'll send to him . . . rather than Cissie. Is a man! . . . You sound as if it were a matter of romance . . .

To "A Confused Girl about Town Reader": "Thanks you for the letter . . . Will get your money back . . . Am wondering about Marge McDevitt's three carat diamond . . . If she's finally made the decision . . . Now, now . . . Don't you know her set's coming to an end, soon?

To Persistence's Bill: Looser. What is you mean "will until you are ready" . . . We get about town and perhaps we have . . .

To Rae Crawford: Thank you for your nice encouragement . . . It's news to us about that sad young lady's being a singer . . . We'll check on it.

To Haverhill's Waltz Burke: Cannot say about Fay Bolger's golfing . . . He didn't have much time to it here . . . And you're still dreaming of cute Arcadia . . . No, we didn't criticize "Cis. Van"; show-girl called 'em as we saw 'em . . .

"Big Timer" Is Screen Feature

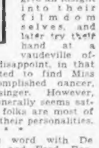
By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Again the RKO Boston stage bill hits the high spots. Topping five turns are two youngsters often seen in movies, Sue Carol and her husband, Nick Stuart.

Their admirers are on hand to give them a warm welcome to Boston. On screen is "The Big Timer," with Ben Lyon. Constance Cummings and Thelma Todd the photoplay being short on the story angle but long enough on the points of action and humor. . . .

Hollywood folk have been trooping along of late, but this fact apparently has not lessened interest in the latest arrivals. Sue and Nick, it is evident, are in high favor with the cinema fans. The theater is jammed and the applause great. The youthful couple first give an insight into their filmdom selves, and later try the vaudeville offering. Hardly disappoint, in that we had expected to find Miss Carol an accomplished dancer, and possibly singer. However, the audience generally seems satisfied; perhaps folks are most of all attentive to their personalities.

Sue Carol



Nick Stuart

Class is the word with De Wolfe Metcalf and Ford, Bostonians who don't have to fall back on that fact to win the plaudits. All three show remarkable dancing ability, and all three can sing. Their reception was a triumph for them, well deserved. Hal Sherman is another highlight of the program. As a comic he stands out; his patter befits abundant laughs. The lass teamed up with him sings excellently. Jack Beauvais, local radio star, has a superb voice and is given hearty applause. La Paul is an A-1 card trickster.

Sylvia Sidney

Within the space of a year, Sylvia Sidney has become one of the most popular actresses on the screen, it was learned when Paramount revealed the fact that the actress now leads the studio in the amount of fan mail received. Only a year ago, Miss Sidney came to Hollywood from the stage, an unknown in motion pictures. Her first chance came when she stepped into "City Streets" to take the part left vacant by Clara Bow's illness. Leading roles in "Street Scene," "An American Tragedy," "Confessions of a Co-Ed" and "Ladies of the Big House" brought her recognition and an increasing stream of fan mail.

Maybe I'm Wrong (About Hollywood)

—By JOHN P. MEDBURY—

Hollywood, March 21—A fatherly sort of director was giving a young actor some good advice on the evils of liquor, and mentioned several people who had let drink get the best of them.

"Take the man who lives next door to me, for instance," said the director. "He spends $400 a month for Scotch and $200 for gin; now what does that show?"

"It shows," said the actor, "that he prefers Scotch."

Wonders of Nature

Stuart Erwin says that his home town is so quiet that you can hear the grass growing on Main st.

Feminine Philosophy

According to Charlotte Greenwood, an old-fashioned girl is one who doesn't live beyond her allmony.

Social Accomplishments

Lew Cody's idea of success is to be so wealthy that you can have insomnia and hire another fellow to count your sheep for you.

Ten-Second Talkies

Edith:—Gertrude's bridal gown looks rather soiled.

Irene:—Yes, she never stays single long enough to send it to the cleaners.

On the Boulevard

A smart Hollywood wife has had all her husband's teeth pulled out so that he can't scratch the gold off her new set of tea cups.

Many a man who tells you he has just cleaned up in oil is only a janitor in a service station.

Daddy Role Stressed by Twins

There is quite a little story in the General Butler who prosecutes Lincoln in "If Booth Had Missed," the sensational play which opens at the Shubert next Saturday. When the play was first produced by the Morningside Players in the National Long Play Tournament held at the Craig Theater in New York last spring, a certain actor was supposed to play General Butler. He went through the final rehearsals. Then at the eleventh hour his wife gave birth to twins.

That was too much of a strain on him. He withdrew in confusion. The Morningside Players turned to George Denny, associate director of The League for Political Education.

Despite his title, Mr. Denny is an amateur trouper. Also, he already has a pair of bouncing twins. He jumped in, learned the part and played it in the production which won first prize in the tournament.

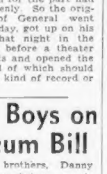
The story shifts now to Broadway. Two days before the New York premiere, Mr. Denny was aroused from bed at midnight by Milton Smith, the director.

"You've got to play the General once more," said Mr. Smith. "Series again?" inquired Mr. Denny.

It wasn't twins. But the regular actor chosen for the part had become ill suddenly. So the original, jitter-proof General went down the day, got the edge on his lines, played that night in the dress rehearsal before a theater of invited guests and opened the next night. All of which should constitute some kind of record or another.

O'Neil Boys on Orpheum Bill

The O'Neil brothers, Danny and Frank, are being warmly greeted by their Brookline friends at Loew's Orpheum this week. The boys were born and educated in Brookline and until their recent return to vaudeville, resided there with their parents. They are members of the Brookline Country Club and the Brookline Lodge of Elks. Aside from his vaudeville work, Danny, the elder of the boys, is a composer of note, having many hits to his credit. His latest number is "I Wish I Could Leave You Alone."



Frank O'Neil

Career Like Jack of All Trades

On the shield of Patterson McNutt, producer who stands sponsor for Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" which opens at the Plymouth Monday night, March 28, is inscribed "The Poor Nut," "This Thing Called Love," "Kibitzer," "Cloudy With Showers," with the engraver tinkering with his tools as he bares his arms and starts to etch "Hay Fever" in the bronze.

Mr. McNutt is like Noel Coward—he has, in turn, been actor, producer and even playwright. And if the charge is made that he cannot parallel the Coward activities because Mr. Coward is likewise a director, let it be stated that Mr. McNutt, too, has been a director if not on the stage, then in the celluloid realms of Hollywood.

As a producer Mr. McNutt's record is moderately pure. He has yet to set up a failure. "The Poor Nut," his initial venture, enriched him to the extent of $80,000, and both "This Thing Called Love" and "Kibitzer" did the last with the now famous Edward Robinson as its star—both had surface indications of bonanza qualities.

Film Honors to Miss Colbert

The charm of Claudette Colbert, plus her ability, in the outstanding asset of "The Wiser Sex," topping the double bill at the Fenway, Modern and Beacon. The plot centers about her efforts to "get" the crooks who have "framed" her fiance, Melvyn Douglas, an able actor on his own hook. The gangster theme is held in the background, very wisely; it is not obtrusive.

Miss Colbert is clever the whole way. Her admirers will note her use of a blonde wig; and fans generally will like her work in her newest film. Lilyan Tashman turns in a corking fine characterization.

The companion picture, "The Woman From Monte Carlo," is much less interesting. The story is frail, and the cinema is overdialogued. Lil Dagover, German star, and Walter Huston have the major roles.

Musical Revue at Bowdoin

The Bowdoin Square is presenting another feast on stage and screen. The out-standing feature this week is the Ray Marr Musical Comedy Revue of 25 persons, mostly girls. With this organization are Don Healey's Rhythm Boys.

The picture bill, too, is one of excellent quality. "The Greeks Had a Word For Them" has Ina Claire, Joan Blondell, Madge Evans, Lowell Sherman and David Manners. Another picture is "Ladies of the Jury," with Edna Mae Oliver, Roscoe Ates and Ken Murray. Wednesday is Cabaret Night, extra stage vaudeville.

Owing to its popularity, the Ray Marr Company will be continued the entire week, with change of production Thursday.

Basil Rathbone Appears in Drama at Colonial

Basil Rathbone, prominent in Arch Selwyn's all-star cast of Benn W. Levy's comedy, "The Devil Passes," at the Colonial next week, recently returned from Hollywood on a six months leave of absence. His last role in the talkies was in support of Pola Negri in "A Woman Commands." At the conclusion of this tour Mr. Rathbone returns to the coast to complete his picture contract, and next year expects to enact his greatest role in the picture version of Mr. Levy's play.

Season Ends for People's Orchestra

By MOSES SMITH

The People's Symphony Orchestra gave its final concert of the season at Jordan Hall yesterday before an audience which was larger than this organization has assembled in many a moon. Perhaps its size was due to the request program, which included the old reliable "Pathetic" symphony of Chaikovsky, and the equally sure-fire prelude to Wagner's Meistersinger. In addition, Hans Ebell played with the orchestra Cesar Franck's Symphonic Variations, and the Apollo Club joined in Chadwick's sonorous "Ecce jam noctis."

The Variations were brilliantly and imaginatively performed by Mr. Ebell, while the orchestral part was ably led by Thompson Stone—far more ably than in most concerto accompaniments in which we have heard the orchestra recently. Similarly, the Chadwick piece received a brilliant performance, though the orchestra was too brilliant, tending to drown out the most heroic efforts of the singers.

The other two works were rendered in more or less routine fashion—which is to say that the performance was nothing more than competent, and at times it did not attain even competence.

Handel and Haydn to Give Concert April 10

The Handel and Haydn Society, Thompson Stone, conductor, will give its next concert on Sunday afternoon, April 10, in Symphony Hall. The soloists will be Jeanne Dusseau, soprano, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera Company; Merle Alcock, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor, Chicago Civic Opera Company; Frederick Baer baritone; John Moncrieff, bass, formerly of the American Opera Company. The People's Symphony Orchestra will assist.

MEDITATIVE

"Road to Life" Holds Over

The current film at the Fine Arts, the first Russian talkie, "Road to Life," has been attracting such crowds that a third week is announced.

"Road to Life" has created a sensation wherever it has been shown. It was voted one of the 10 best pictures throughout the entire world by European audiences.

Ann Harding's Next Film to Be "Just a Woman," by Eugene Walters

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service.

Los Angeles, March 21—Ann Harding objected, and perhaps rightly, to my article that Mrs. Brock Pemberton is changing her personality. I don't think, however, she can object to my saying that the photographs I saw on Mrs. Pemberton's desk made her look more stunning than at any time in her career.

Louella O. Parsons

Her next story is "Just a Woman" by Eugene Walters. David Selznick purchased it with Miss Harding in mind. He hopes she will like it. Ann is rarely enthusiastic about movie stories, but perhaps it is better to reserve all opinions until after a story reaches the screen.

Gregory La Cava, and I haven't heard from him in ages, directs Miss Harding.

A Movie Recruit

Samuel Goldwyn, who we are told when in strongly for social Palm Beach, returns today. Sam, who never minds how many times his name is used just so it's spelled correctly, will probably have numerous statements to make to the press. But since our readers are more interested in news than statements, we think perhaps we ought to tell that Diane of Dario and Diane (dance team), a Ralph Farnum discovery, has been signed by Mr. Goldwyn. He saw the girls' work in New York and persuaded her to come to Hollywood to play one of the leading feminine roles in "The Kid From Spain." Lily Damita will have the other lead. Diane is expected here when she finishes her engagement in New York.

Tahiti News

Here is Tahiti news and lots of it. In a letter postmarked Feb. 29, Tom Geraghty sends all the gossip. Douglas Fairbanks has joined up with the Vincent Astor yachting party and on the days when Doug isn't tea-ing the yacht the party is visiting, his coral pool. Virginia Cherrill, who made the trip to the South Seas for the purpose of meeting William Rhinelander Stewart, is seen constantly in the young millionaire's company. Nothing is said as to when the marriage will take place, but it won't be long. Jules Glaenzer, visiting in the South Sea islands, was host at a luncheon at the Tiare cafe, described as the Embassy Club of Papeete, Eddie Sutherland, Dave Rosen, Harry Stam and Tom were in the party. Groups of flower-bedecked Polynesian girls greeted Doug with cries of "Zorro," or the Fox, as they call him. "Many people," says Tom, "are asking about Monte Blue, and hundreds express regret over Murnau's untimely death, which prevented his return to the islands."

Will Rogers' Next

Most people make hay while the sun shines. Will Rogers is playing polo while his days of leisure continue. He starts work in two weeks on "Down to Earth." The story, by Homer Croy, is a sequel to "They Had to See Paris," with Pike Peters of Claremore, Oklahoma, still doing business at the old stand. Being the old-fashioned type, Pike won't change his wife. So it is more than likely Irene Rich will be called home from vaudeville. In fact, I might add, negotiations are now on to engage her for the same role she played in the other picture. Miss Rich has been doing very well in vaudeville. Reports keep coming in from towns where she has appeared.

I have been advised to get ready to take a look at Marion Burns. Albert Parker writes and wires to tell me that she has the looks, she has the personality and she has the ability and that she will be in Hollywood soon.

Snapshots of Hollywood

JAMES CAGNEY getting a rousing reception at the opening of the Frolics, Hollywood's newest night club. EDWARD ROBINSON and VICTOR M'LAGLEN, two other bad boys of the screen, receiving equally big hand. MARILYN MILLER in white, dancing to the tune of Ted Fio-Rito's music with DON ALVARADO. GEORGE RAFT, as easy a dancer as we have seen in many a day, doing an impromptu number with BOBBE ARNST. He has just signed a Paramount contract. MISS ARNST headliner at the new cafe, dedicating one of her songs to JOHNNY WEISSMULLER. FUZZY KNIGHT and JIMMIE DURANTE keeping the appreciative crowd in good humor with their nonsense. JIMMIE came from the opening of "The Wet Parade" with others of the M-G-M folk. CHARLES JUDELS, a perfect master of ceremonies, having a gracious word for everyone. MR. JUDELS and VICTOR M'LAGLEN open in a vaudeville act together. SEENA OWEN, BERT WHEELER, HARVEY ALBRIGHT, LEO CARRILLO, DOROTHY LEE, JOHN MEDBURY among those introduced. MADGE EVANS, one of the prettiest girls at the opening, with TOM GALLERY. The bride and bridegroom, JOAN and GENE MARKEY, at DEL MONTE. That's all today.

Father Coughlin, Radio Priest »»» His Works and Messages

Holy Week Renews World's Hopes, Says Fr. Coughlin

By ALAN FRAZER

Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American.

From the Shrine of the Little Flower, parishioners and visitors have carried away the symbolic palms.

Now is come Holy Week.

As he goes about his daily tasks, Fr. Coughlin is turning over in his mind his Easter sermon.

His Easter words. The final sermon of his present series. His farewell before seeking relaxation from arduous service in a trip west.

Again he is tapping the reservoirs of his mind for thoughts and words of molten gold which make his sermons everlasting.

RESURRECTION SERMON

Of the dawn of faith and hope.

Such an unforgettable picture he painted last Easter, when he said:

"The life of Christ was crowned by His death. The death of Christ on the cross fulfilled the essential mission of His coming into the world.

"Of this we are certain. And upon this fact is builded the structure of our faith, of our hope and of our charity.

"Others may preach. Others through His Blessed Name may work wonders. But He alone could and did die for the redemption of the world.

"Thus, reverently, my friends, we take our stand beneath the cross. The crowd which had come to witness the death of Christ had dispersed. Only the intimate disciples and friends of the Saviour remained with His Blessed Mother remain.

DIED SPEEDILY

"The Sabbath was approaching, in accordance with the ancient regulation, it would begin at sunset. And this was a particularly solemn Sabbath, because it fell within the Paschal Feast.

"Although it was the Roman custom to leave the bodies of those crucified for considerable time upon the cross, the Mosaic law, on the contrary, forbade that the corpse of one executed be left on the gibbet for the night.

"Before Our Lord expired, the chief priests sent to Pilate a request that he would order Christ's limbs to be broken with a club so as to hasten His death.

"The governor at once sent soldiers, who broke the legs of the two thieves. When they came to the blessed cross, behold, He was already dead.

"One of them, Longinus by name, by way of precaution, pierced His side with a lance. Thence flowed a mixture of blood and water.

"Christ was already dead. Dead beyond all dispute. And to this fact His enemies have borne witness.

PROPHECY FULFILLED

"Well have the prophecies of the ancient Scriptures been fulfilled. 'You shall not break a bone in Him.' 'And they shall look upon Him whom they pierced.'

"It may have been four o'clock in the afternoon when these last events took place. At this season of the year in Palestine the sun sets at about six o'clock. Consequently, whatever steps were to be taken regarding the Saviour's burial had to be attended to speedily.

"Then it was that Joseph of Arimathea intervened. First of all, before he could act, Pilate's authorization was required. With his attendants, Joseph goes to the procurator's home.

"Do not forget that this Joseph of Arimathea was a member of the Sanhedrin. Do not be unmindful of the immense courage which was required on his part to act as a friend of Christ in the face of the majority of the Sanhedrin's members, who already had condemned the Innocent Victim to death.

BODY REMOVED

"But he who became forever illustrious by this act of courage obtained permission to take the corpse from the cross and bury it in his own tomb.

"Carefully the nails are withdrawn from the hands and feet. Tenderly the bruised head is let down into the arms of His afflicted mother. Nicodemus was there. So was John, both of whom assisted Joseph in this holy task.

"Behold the Blessed Mother, who once bathed her Baby Boy at Bethlehem's cave, as she washes the congealed blood from those thousand gaping wounds. Pity her as she lifts the crowns of thorns from the tender brow which she had so often kissed.

"With all the love of a sorrowing mother, she wraps His arms and limbs in linen cloths. The precious ointments and spices which Joseph and Nicodemus brought are placed about the corpse—myrrh, aloes.

"The wisemen of old had brought Mary in the crib of the infant Jesus. I wonder if its fragrance on the day of His burial brought back the memory of it all to Mary's broken heart.

TOMB CLOSED

"The little procession sets out from the hill of Calvary just as the crimson sun is setting into its grave in the west.

"Poor Jesus—really poor! He was born in a cave which was owned by shepherds. He was too poor to have had in His possession a tomb for His own burial.

"Tenderly Joseph and Nicodemus placed his body upon the cold slab. Gently does John take Mary by the arm and lead her away. Then the servants and Joseph roll a great stone before the entrance.

"With Mary Magdalen; with Mary, the mother of James, the sorrowful Virgin Mother wends her way to the great city. The sun has set. Her heart is broken. But it is filled with hope—a hope that is born of heaven."

Saturday comes. The chief priests and Pharisees ask Pilate to assign soldiers to guard the tomb. Pilate accedes.

SOLDIERS ON GUARD

"The great stone is sealed. The soldiers are stationed about it. Exact orders are given them to exercise the strictest watchfulness.

"All these precautions were providential. They serve to place entirely beyond question the miracle of miracles which is about to happen.

"And so, into the long hours of the night, in the lurid glow of their campfire, the soldiers watched. No one approached to disturb the tomb.

"Just as the morning sun is beginning to paint the East with roseate hues, behold, to the consternation of those present who are guarding the tomb, the great stone trembles, then poises itself upon its pivot, and comes tumbling back.

"There stands Jesus, glorious and immortal, risen from the dead. The temple which had been destroyed is rebuilt within three days!

VISIT TOMB

"The temporary anointing bestowed upon Jesus by Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea was planned to preserve the corpse from decaying until after the Sabbath Day. Now that the Feast of the Pasch was over; now that the first day of the week had come, behold the Galilean women setting forth at sunrise to Joseph's garden for the final anointing of Christ's body.

"There was Mary Magdalen and Mary, the mother of James. There was Salome and Joanna.

"As they were nearing the place they thought of the heavy stone which they had seen set against the entrance to the tomb. And they said, one to another: 'Who shall roll us back the stone of the sepulchre?'

"They were not yet aware that the Jewish authorities had set guards at the sepulchre and sealed the entrance.

"Great was their amazement when, upon going forward and raising their eyes to the slight eminence that formed Golgotha, they perceived that the stone already has been rolled away and that the tomb was empty.

"There were the soldiers prostrate on the ground! There was an angel at the entrance to the tomb! Just as at Bethlehem angels sang the birth of Christ, so at Golgotha an angel told of His resurrection.

"Imagine how rapidly their hearts beat within their breasts. The miracle of miracles had transpired. Christ had risen from the dead. Doubt bowed to certainty. Faith gave way to knowledge and experience. Jesus is their God!

"In the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead we begin to understand what He meant when He defined Himself in the words, 'I am the Resurrection and the Life.'

"We begin to understand more clearly that life is not bounded by the cradle and the grave.

"We begin to appreciate more clearly His teaching of, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His justice, and all these things shall be added unto you.'

HOPE IN RESURRECTION

"There is not one single home, be it a palace or an humble cottage, into which my voice is being carried this evening, which does not ring with newer hope that in the victory of Christ over death, some day there shall be duplicated the miracles of Bethsaida, of Naim and of Jerusalem where Christ raised Lazarus, the widow's son, and the daughter of Jairus from the cold grasp of death.

"Some loved one has departed from your midst. Some chair is vacant. Some heart lonesome.

"But in the memory of this first Easter morn there is the promise extended to all who believe in Jesus Christ that every grave shall be opened and every corpse, though crushed and worn with the weight of this life, shall be returned to your possession.

"Arms to grasp you in eternal embrace. Voice to whisper to you the words of lasting love. Lips to impress yours with the seal of a sacred kiss.

"O, grave, where is thy victory! O, death, where is thy sting!"

"Thus in the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, hope is born within every human heart.

VICTORY OVER DEATH

"To those of us who are crushed in grief in some Gethsemane; to the thousands of our fellow citizens whose brows are crowned with the thorns of worry; to the millions of our brothers and sisters whose bodies are lashed by the scourge of illness; to everyone who either today or tomorrow must set forth from some Pilate's Hall, bearing a heavy cross upon his shoulder as he staggers along a highway that leads to Calvary—there is that unfading, imperishable memory of Jesus Christ who has gone before us, and there is that Divine assurance that just beyond the hill of skulls, there is the tomb of the resurrection.

"Through His Blessed Name, and blessed victory over death, the great stone of doubt has been rolled aside.

"In His resurrection from the grave there is given strength to everyone of us to tread our weary way along life's journey, confident in our own resurrection, both of body and soul, from the dead."

Christ's Passion Dramatized by Fr. Coughlin on Air

A drama of the passion of Jesus Christ, the "greatest tragedy in the history of man," occupied the major part of the broadcast of the Rev. Charles F. Coughlin's "Golden Hour" over a countrywide network.

The drama, written by Father Coughlin, was a resume of the trial, passion and crucifixion of Christ, and was interpreted by players from the Detroit Civic Theater.

GAVE ETERNAL LIFE

Throughout the presentation the voice of the radio priest was heard as he acted as announcer and chronicler.

"It is Holy Week," said Father Coughlin at the opening of the broadcast," because 1900 years ago the death of Christ purchased for us life eternal beyond the grave; holy, because principles which He taught, the doctrines for which He died, are fundamentals on which are constructed not only our personal lives, but also the happiness of our family life and the property of our national life.

"Turn backward with us down the corridor of time, on the wings of fancy, lite once more through these hours of tragedy. The Man of Sorrows, Christ our God, has magnetized our attention. Thus we are reverently dedicating this hour to a dramatization of the Trial and Power of our Redeemer.

"He Himself commanded that His message be carried to the utmost ends of the earth. May this golden hour be a reverent part in the spirit of that great command."

Father Coughlin stated that the hour was spent in commemorating a tremendous tragedy.

"Because of our sins, our willful desires, our uncharitable thoughts, our lascivious imaginings, Christ's head was crushed with thorns that pierced His brain. Because we have feasted the body with the indulgences of the flesh, Christ's body was torn to ribbons. Death, to buy the price of our redemption," he said.

APPEALS TO IRRELIGIOUS

At the conclusion, he asked his listeners to kneel and pray with him. He appealed to those who had strayed from the religion of their childhood to return.

"You heard His mother's sacred cry of anguish," he said. "If your own mother could come close to your heart today her cry of anguish would pierce the sky, not because you are perishing but because you are dying spiritually."

THOMAS MANN EXTOLS GOETHE

Weimar, Germany, March 21 (AP)—One hundred years ago tomorrow, on March 22, 1832, Johann Wolfgang Von Goethe, Germany's literary genius, died in this little Thuringian capital, where he spent 56 years of his life, most of the time a high official of the state.

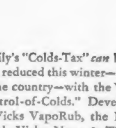
Today, from every part of Germany, government officials, representatives of universities and distinguished men of letters were hurrying here to take part in memorial exercises in Goethe's honor.

The memorial exercises actually began last night with the performance of "Goetz von Verlichingen," the first important drama of the career that was to be crowned with "Faust," Goethe's masterpiece.

Today Thomas Mann, internationally famous German novelist and Nobel prize winner, delivered an address on the life of the great master, and there was a performance of "Egmont." Memorial programs will be held throughout Germany tomorrow.

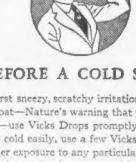
Vick Plan cuts Costs of Colds!

THE family's "Colds-Tax" can be reduced. It is being reduced this winter—in every community in the country—with the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds." Developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub, the Plan is made possible with Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea for preventing colds, this new Vick formula is companion to VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds. Each aids and supplements the other in the Vick Plan, which follows:



1. BEFORE A COLD STARTS—

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's warning that you are "catching cold"—use Vicks Drops promptly as directed. If you catch cold easily, use a few Vicks Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that you know is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes, wet or cold—after over-smoking—dry, overheated rooms—indoor crowds—etc., etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages.



2. AFTER A COLD STARTS—

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.) This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing."

TRIAL OFFER BY LOCAL DRUGGISTS

You have Vicks VapoRub—now get Vicks Nose Drops and use together as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—to reduce their number and severity. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

MUSSOLINI'S SALUTE AND CHAPLIN'S MUSTACHE MAKE A HITLER

By GILBERT SELDES

THERE MUST BE SOMETHING in Adolf Hitler which the newsreel hasn't managed to convey to us; it isn't reasonable that eleven million Germans should vote for a man whose only attributes are a Charlie Chaplin mustache and a Mussolini salute. Of course, this combination is a novelty, but I do not think that Congressman Fish would stand a chance in America even if he added Gandhi's loin cloth to Harold Lloyd's spectacles; even in politics you have to have something the people think they want. Hitler, obviously, has it. He has the supremely attractive quality of being against the government, which means, at the moment, that he can pose as the savior of Germany, since the government in power is merely trying to solve its difficulties and Hitler proposes to ignore them.

GILBERT SELDES

"I'm Insulted"

The Hitler position only became clear after he had failed to defeat Hindenburg and was compelled to appear before a tribunal investigating his citizenship. Like many American politicians, Hitler considers any inquiry an insult; he said so. He said it was monstrous that he, who had fought for four years at the front, should not be naturalized while thousands of East Galicians had been admitted to citizenship. He considered it of no importance that he had fought as an Austrian, not as a German. He was willing to appear as an almost-martyred, almost-President of Germany because a small boy threw a stone at the window of his railway carriage. And, to the commissioner investigating his citizenship, he cried out, "Take your hands out of your pockets when you are talking to ME!"

Herr Hitler, somehow, fails to be impressive. Maybe he needs a new press-agent, and maybe he needs a new character.

Hoarding Counterfeits

The President's self-congratulations on the success of the anti-hoarding campaign struck me as being both premature and pathetic; it sounded like a channel swimmer who had come in last in the race and boasted because he hadn't actually drowned. The whole campaign was, as George Santayana said of many such schemes, curing the symptom and driving in the disease. And the proof of it comes from the strangest quarter; even the counterfeiters are hoarding. A few days ago 200 10-dollar bills were found under the mattress in a New York hotel. If the hoarding-psychology of false-coiners hasn't been affected, we're still in a bad way.

Fabulous Riches

I disbelieve the story that Park ave. mourned the death of Ivar Kreuger chiefly because the first lines of the report said that hardly anyone knew Kreuger well; mystery men are not mourned, not even by so mournfully dull a street as Park ave. above Fifty-ninth.

I think the real mourners should have been the dispossessed, because with Kreuger's suicide one of the most attractive myths of our time came closer to complete vanishment. I mean the myth of available wealth in fabulous terms, the myth of inordinate riches, gold-plated men-servants, silk-and-velvet yachts and unlimited power. I mean the characters and the doings of an E. Phillips Oppenheim romance, the Graustarkian American millionaires, the strangely quiet Britons who control world politics, the odd Belgian and Greek figures who are so rich that they cannot breathe without exhaling a slight and desirable taint of gold.

The Million Man

I do not know how long the idea of countless wealth has been wedged into the mind of human beings. When Marco Polo and his brothers came home to Venice after their travels and, at a banquet, stripped off their rags and began to throw gold and jewels upon the table, the whole city marveled, envied and called Marco "il Milione." From the wealth of India to the far-flung riches of the man from Death Valley, the mere thought of riches has had an incalculable effect on what people think and do. In his moments of aspiration, every man wants ten or a hundred or a thousand times as much as he has; but in his important day dreams he wants more money than he can count.

Money Vanishes

For 10 years we have all believed that this immeasurable sum could be found somewhere and, equally important to us, that once found it would last forever. The series of shocks which began in 1929 have first persuaded us that we have to deflate the figures of our day dreams; the sharper shock of a death like Kreuger's terrifies us because we have suddenly to revise our whole idea of the permanence of money.

Nightmare Figures

Socialists have always despised the luxury ideal, saying with a great deal of truth that the vulgarity of the rich in their spending was pretty unbearable. Events took away from all the socialists, except the Russians, the opportunity for destroying that ideal. When royalty becomes economical, when Hollywood prides itself on saving a thousand dollars in a production (not even a thousand a day) and when men who have loomed money to whole nations destroy themselves because their wealth is gone, the thought of overwhelming wealth becomes an absurdity. It moves over from our day dreams to the less accountable wildness of nightmare.

NICHOLAS GOING BACK TO CAROL

Nice, March 21 (AP)—Prince Nicholas of Rumania told the Associated Press today he was going back home to take up his old place in the court of his brother, King Carol.

He made this disclosure of his plans when he reached here at the wheel of the automobile he drove down from Paris in the gruelling Paris-Nice motor race. He was well up in the running, but the official results will not be announced until Friday.

'Covering' China War Cost 27 Cents to $1.46 a Word

Washington, March 21 (AP)—The battle within a battle, as foreign correspondents at Shanghai sought to get their war news back home, was described today by Charles Stephenson Smith of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press, before the Institute of Far Eastern Affairs.

Citing the intensive interest in America when the Chinese-Japanese hostilities were at their climax, Smith said that during this period American cable news from Shanghai and Tokio was estimated at from 10,000 to 20,000 words daily.

"The cable rate on Shanghai press matter is 27 cents a word," he pointed out. "Some of the matter came at full rates, which is $1.46 a word. There were days when the tolls on news of the Shanghai fighting exceeded $10,000. This does not include dispatches from Geneva and European capitals concerning the Far Eastern tangle.

"Most of this burden fell on the news agencies, as only a few great dailies maintain their own correspondents in China."

Oldoway Man's Age May Be 1,000,000

London, March 21 (AP)—A. T. Hopwood of the London Museum of Natural History, reported today that an expedition in Tanganyika, East Africa, had unearthed proof that the "Oldoway Man" is the oldest modern type of man yet known.

Tools and other objects found indicate the Oldoway Man, found in 1913, equalled culturally the Heidelberg Man. The Oldoway Man, Hopwood said, "Might be 100,000 or 1,000,000 years old."

VALERA ARMY IN TRAINING

Belfast, March 21 (INS)—Northern Ireland, closely watching the activities of the new Irish Free State government under Eamon de Valera, today heard that the Republican army had resumed illegal training.

Some concern was evidenced over these reports and their obvious connection with the announced intention of De Valera to abolish the oath of allegiance to King George and to cancel further payments of land annuities to Great Britain.

Death Takes Editor

11 AMERICANS IN WRECKED TRAIN

Mexico City, March 21 (AP)—Eleven Americans had arrived at their destinations in Mexico safe, but late, today after escaping from bandits who wrecked an international passenger train yesterday near Mariscala, Queretaro State.

The train carried three Pullman cars from St. Louis and San Antonio. The fireman and an express messenger were killed, but a group of soldiers, acting as a train escort, routed the bandits before they could rob or harm the passengers.

Two other attempts to wreck trains in the vicinity of Mariscala were averted by the engineers.

Accused of Robbing Man in Card Game

John Tychyno of East Walpole, arraigned in municipal court today charged with robbery while armed, was held in $1000 for hearing April 1. He was accused of robbing Kastantas Kozlowski of Chelsea, of $3700 during a card game in a downtown hotel and pleaded not guilty.

Inspectors DiCessa and Haggerty told Judge John Duff that during the card game Tychyno pulled a gun and took the $3700 from Kozlowski.

DISSECTING THE THEORY OF GOVERNMENT BY AND FOR THE PEOPLE

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

PROF. ROGERS

I HAVE READ your Evacuation Day oration.

Quote—But the events of the past two weeks have brought every one in this country the conviction that something is radically wrong.

I presume that your are referring to the Lindbergh case. That is bad. But are not the thousands of other infants suffering from malnutrition of any importance? Or are you affected only by physical acts, unable perhaps to comprehend the significance of economic crises?

Quote—We have seen the great cities—go bankrupt through the incompetence and corruption of a genuinely popular government.

Yes, professor, and in 1931 we have also seen 2200 banking institutions go bankrupt through the incompetence and corruption of genuinely selective governing boards. Or should one use more euphemistic language in discussing affairs of this variety? Will you please give the ratio of bankrupt cities to bankrupt banks? It seems to me there are not 2,200 cities in the U. S. All of them have not failed. Milwaukee, operated by your despised Socialists, has the lowest of the low, has a surplus of $2,000,000. What bank broke that?

Quote—We have seen the legislative power arm seek—to nullify the judicial arm.

Yes, professor, and in the "American Guardian" of March 10 there is an article by Upton Sinclair entitled "Judges for Sale." He quotes Judge Dill, New Jersey, the author of the book "Dill On Corporations," a text-book used in many large Eastern law schools, as saying that 19 of 25 Supreme Court justices he knew were not only crooked, but that the men who owned them were known to him.

Judiciary Comes in for Censure

Quote—We have seen the whole moral tone of our national life debased by unwise and unselective immigration."

True professor, but why show just one corner of the picture? The present Federal Trade Commission investigation into the financing and administrating of the public utilities, and particularly the activities of the holding companies, seem to show that the plight of our country is due in no small part to the rapacities of these best-family controlled pounderers. We have also seen Andrew Mellon, the staunch upholder of the best Hamiltonian traditions, use his high office to further his private business. I refer to the State Department loan to Colombia, immediately following which were the private concessions by the Colombian government to the Mellon-Morgan controlled Barco Oil Co. Of course, Mellon was not guilty of any irregularities, but it seems more than mere coincidence that he should be "called" to England just as the Pulitzer investigation into the connection between the loan and the concession to Mellon's company began to get hot.

Yes, dear professor, let us hammer away at the foreign-born racketeer and gunman. Let us discredit the grafting politician (at the same time disregarding the source of the bribe). Let us insist upon "honest graft." Instead of paying cash for favors and franchises received, the "best people" now give the grafting politicians a block of stock in some prosperous company. This of course does away with the necessity of answering embarrassing questions concerning the "pint of milk tin boxes," or were they something else?

Concerning the sale of billions of dollars worth of spurious foreign securities to the trusting yokels, let us maintain a discreet but knowing silence, since it was all done according to the "best traditions" of our noble forbear, the Yankee "hoss" trader.

If we remember our history correctly, the very people for whom we celebrate Evacuation Day were not exactly "law-abiding." When the Parliament put a tax on tea, they showed their displeasure by unlawfully seizing another's property and consigning it to the briny deep. Oh, but that was different! How? They disliked a law and refused to obey it. There are certain laws today which people dislike, and they also refuse to obey, following the best traditions of the founders.

An able and an angry letter. (I have eliminated some of the nose-thumbing and Bronx-cheering.) Since it is so long I shall have to be very concise in my answer.

My correspondent evidently swallows whole the Socialist dogma that bad government is due to the wicked rich men. Turn the proposition around and it makes sense; that the wicked rich men are due to bad government. I cheerfully accept most of the items of the indictment above and add them to my own. The growth of incompetence in public business and corruption in private business has been in direct proportion to the growth of the power of the democracy.

The bench may be bad but it is still more worthy of respect than the legislatures. And the appointed bench is generally more worthy of respect than the elected bench. And if the bar is losing the respect it once had, it is because the barriers have been let down and its standards of excellence seriously lowered

Democracy Holds the Power

The fight for good government is not the question whether the virtuous democracy or the wicked rich are to control it. The virtuous democracy already has complete power in its hands to do as it pleases. And it pleases to allow the rich to do as they please. Any criticism of the influence of wealth over our legislatures and courts is a criticism of the democracy that permits it. For the democracy is in politics in most cases for what it can get out of it, and the wicked rich are the easiest and the most convenient source of supply.

But a political idealism which would make holding office a matter of honor, not livelihood, a matter of tested and examined fitness rather than of ability at vote-getting, would be competent to deal with the irresponsible and predatory rich as well as with the irresponsible and predatory poor. In other words, we should go back to the ideals of the founders before Jefferson and Jackson destroyed them in the name of the common man. For the Revolution soon passed out of the hands of the Sons of Liberty, the mobs that destroyed the stamps and tea. It passed into the hands of the Hancocks, Gerrys and Adamses, the men of education, professional position, brains and substance. It passed into the hands of men who fought in the law courts, in legislatures, in congresses, by methods of law and order, constitutional methods. To attribute the fruits of the Revolution to a crowd of law-breakers is to mistake the Revolution entirely.

The fruit of that Revolution was the Federalist ideal of government by the solid and responsible portion of society. Not that the democracy smashed that ideal, did the practices of which both my correspondent and I complain come to be the accepted thing in our policy.

Financial measures and business legislation drawn by disinterested economists instead of by politicians under the thumb of bankers and business men might have saved many of the banks my correspondent mentions. But surely in the present crisis there can be excuses made for the failure of a bank, when there can be absolutely none for the wrecking of a city's credit. And not even the most Jeffersonian or Marxist secretary of the treasury could have done business save through the existing business set-up, for which, in the last analysis, the democracy is responsible. And if a Socialist city is still solvent, it is solvent because it has conducted its government on the principles of safe private business and not of popular demand.

No, my dear Democrolator, it isn't as simple as you think!

'HUNGER MARCH' PLAN OF REDS BARED

At Busy L Terminal With the Candid Camera

Sullivan Square Terminal where the elevated system and many street car and bus lines converge, is a busy spot, indeed. The operating end of the elevated trains is handled from this station.

A pleasant and efficient citizen is Fred H. Orr, chief train dispatcher of elevated system Everett to Forest Hills. He was checking the train reports on telautograph.

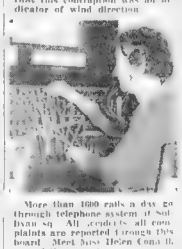
I found Miss Anna Murphy hard at work. She is the chief telephone operator for the elevated system. She was telling me that this contraption was an indicator of wind direction



More than 1600 calls a day go through telephone system at Sullivan sq. All accidents and complaints are reported through this board. Meet Miss Helen Conall, one of the operators

U. S. SHOULD AID HOME OWNERS, SAYS HURLEY

His statement came in an [illegible] G. Dieren, financial editor of the New York American printed [illegible] urely in the Boston Evening American.

"In my opinion, the reconstruction board committee here in Massachusetts could do more to help the home owners and citizens of Massachusetts if they would loan some of the funds to our various banks on frozen assets, namely, first mortgages, so that the banks will have some ready cash on hand," Hurley said.

"This would, in my opinion, eliminate the calling in of hundreds of first mortgages which are now being called by various banks in the cotton-mill districts.

"The editorial hits the subject frankly and honestly and discloses what is being done by this reconstruction board committee here in Massachusetts.

"The committee is made up of the bankers of Boston. We have more banks outside of Boston than we have in Boston with a larger amount of deposits, yet they have no representation.

"Here are the figures. In Boston, for example, there are 16 trust companies. Outside of Boston there are 83. In Boston the deposits total $168,272,000.00. Outside Boston the deposits in 83 trust companies amount to $385,491,311.

"It is my opinion that this reconstruction finance corporation should help the individual home owner today in his perplexing problem. In other words, this corporation today is a government corporation and not a bankers' corporation.

"If it is a government corporation, then the people should have representatives on this board so that they would know how this money is being invested, and so that when the people themselves wish to obtain first mortgages on their homes they may tell the local savings bank or trust company they understand that funds are available through the reconstruction finance corporation to help them. In other words, the home owner has just as much right for relief as the banker or the railroads."

Business being what it is and all that, shorts for your husband at his office in business hours have not yet been included in "What Men are Wearing," nor is it yet the mode to have in the office a pretty brunette in chemise and shoes and stockings, and naught else.

This style of business hour garb, as of Dec 3, 1931, was described today in Middlesex Probate Court by Mrs. Maria F. MacMillan, 32, of Dana st., Cambridge, during trial of her suit for divorce from Donald J. MacMillan.

It was MacMillan who was attired in the shorts. Mr. MacM[illegible] identified and Miss Isabel Hatch, 28, of Whittier st., Andover, who [illegible] the display [illegible] 1:30 in the afternoon.

"How long has this been going on?" asked Mrs. MacMillan, according to her testimony.

"About a year," her husband answered.

Mrs. MacMillan then went out and had hysterics, which necessitated her going under a doctor's care, she testified.

Her husband is not contesting the suit, but Miss Hatch, named by her, is a contestant, and the latter's counsel, J. Bradley Mahoney, made a bit of sport as he cross-examined her by inadvertently addressing Mrs. MacMillan as "Miss Hatch."

"Don't worry," Mrs. MacMillan shot back, "I don't want him now."

PRATT IN PLEA FOR FARMS FOR VETS

To [illegible] stimulate patriotism and offset Communism, Rep. C. F. Nelson Pratt urged the [illegible] Senate-House Committee to order an investigation relative to state assistance to veterans in acquiring homes and farms.

"There are 120,000 veterans in Massachusetts who could take advantage of such assistance," said Rep. Pratt. "It would give veterans an opportunity to obtain homes and farms at a low cost of financing. It would also stimulate the building industry and release frozen assets from banks.

"All leading officials of veterans' organizations are 'sold' on the idea which has already been successfully in South Dakota, Kansas, North Carolina and particularly in California. In California nearly $50,000,000 had been spent up to Jan. 1 last for this purpose. The average cost of the homes thus purchased there was $4321."

Senator Charles A. Stevens of Lowell said:

"We feel that the best citizens are those who own their own homes, whether they are veterans or not. There are many abandoned farms in Massachusetts and the proposed measure might promote agriculture here. Most of the $50,000,000 spent by the State of California went for purchase of homes."

WOOL PARLEY IS CALLED

Lawrence, March 21—Mayor William P. White and the four members of the city council will confer in Boston tomorrow with executives of the American Woolen Co. and the Arlington mills, regarding recent complaints lodged with the city government by the Greater Lawrence Textile Council.

The council claims some of the mills have violated their agreement with regard to wages, efficiency men and discrimination against workers.

At today's meeting of the city council, Horace A. Riviere, organizer for the Textile Council presented a complaint signed by 49 workers of one American Woolen mill, who claim the mill agent refused to confer with them over a grievance.

Then Ruby was ready to go with the case today, government witnesses were late Langley waived reading the complaint, and was held in $1000 for the grand jury.

Langley, it was disclosed, was fined $200 and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction when arraigned in Dorchester court for the same offense, and appealed.

SULLIVAN RAPS CITY OFFICIALS

[illegible] city officials to appear and appear in [illegible] of Dorchester [illegible] for additional station at Harrison ave. on the Dorchester rapid transit line, was rapped today by Rep Lewis R. Sullivan at a hearing before the House Ways and Means committee.

Sullivan's declaration that "there are many things City Hall doesn't want that the people of Dorchester to know" came when one of the committee said he thought city officials could not be much interested judging from the absence.

According to Sullivan, 10,000 Dorchester residents want the new station, which would cost $150,000, but which would develop the section.

Atty. H. W. Barnum, counsel for the Elevated trustees said officials of the road are not opposed to the new station but believe there is not sufficient demand for one.

DAILY RADIO ROLL CALL

Stations Alert for Morning Salute

By N. F. T.

Few listeners will ever hear "WOOF" on the air, unless our Animal Rescue League puts on a program, or some announcer is hurriedly called upon to impersonate Rin-Tin-Tin. Yet the word is one of the most extensively employed figures of speech known to "mike" men. Engineers coined the bit for testing purposes.

BEFORE BREAKFAST

Between 6 and 6:30 a. m., every morning, an all important radio ceremony takes place and they call it "Waking Up the Network." This interesting procedure requires testing of lines to all stations affiliated with both chain hookups. If the doings were heard on the air it would sound something like as follows:

"Okay, A. T. & T.—NBC ready to go. Hello Pittsburgh, Okay! Hello Baltimore, Woof—Woof—Woof! It's 6:30, now for Boston, Woof—Woof!"

Lawrence Tibbett reported off the air tonight (WEEI) at 8:30, but only temporarily. Richard Crooks, tenor, will be heard in his place.

Shoe Union Pickets Appear in Court

Charged with contempt in the violation of an injunction obtained by the Gregory-Read Shoe Company of Lynn, six strikers appeared in Salem Superior Court today. Recently the Boot and Shoe Union declared a strike against the Gregory-Read Company, but picketing was forbidden by court order.

The strikers who appeared in court today, with more than 200 of their supporters had refused to leave the front of the shoe factory and were arrested. Both the union and the shoe company agreed in court today to submit the case to a master in Superior Court Thursday.

"ONE-WOMAN-AT-A-TIME MAN" ALL SHE CRAVES

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHY IS a man so wobbly, in love? Why can he never be satisfied with one woman at a time? Why is he always going back and forth, like a four-flush?

Your modern girl doesn't ask for a one-woman man. She knows better. All she demands is a one-woman-at-a-time-man, which seems little enough.

If a man would be content just to "love 'em and leave 'em" when it's all over, how many a sorrow would be averted! How many a heart-break would be avoided!

The old-fashioned girl used to go into a decline and pine away, when a love-affair went blah. But the up-to-date girl can "take it on the chin". She can even forgive and FORGET it. One man can't wreck her life. He can only chip a little piece off her heart and shatter one or two of her illusions.

But, while a love affair lasts, it seems to be WORTH WHILE... Some men seem to be constantly wondering whether it is worth while to be married to one woman or to a succession of them. Some men seem to be afraid of getting tied up for keeps to one woman. She wants to be the WHOLE SHOW—and she wants the show to be entertaining and glamorous!

He likes all the courses and side-dishes of the love-feast served at once (like the dinner at a farmhouse) so he gets the real flavor of none of them.

For better or worse, a man in the old-fashioned sense who "pursued the girl" one at a time and then married her, off. He loved her and LEFT her!

But your modern lover can neither love them nor LEAVE them. He just keeps shopping off and shopping back again. You can't hold him—and you can't lose him. A woman would rather be loved completely, beautifully and artistically for one whole day or one whole summer—and then forgotten—than to be loved intermittently for a life-time. At least, she'd have something to REMEMBER—and nothing much to forget.

Variety may be the spice of life for a man. But it's got a heads-up, to a woman perfectly well that Doctor Baldwin had been involved with Lola Carew, as she called herself, and I knew that she was an evil influence in his life. Some of the papers published some very unpleasant insinuations."

Coll glanced at me. So Dougherty was up to his old tricks again! In our conversation during the night Dougherty had expressed his sense of Doctor Baldwin's innocence in connection with the murder. There was one thing that Dougherty could not keep from doing and that was to suppress.

"I tried to get Hugh on the telephone," Mrs. Baldwin went on, "but Miss Simon explained that he had gone out."

Here Miss Simon interrupted.

"The doctor went out shortly after I arrived this morning, Mr. Coll and soon after he was gone Mrs Baldwin telephoned. When he came back I told him that Mrs Baldwin was on her way in the office He looked at me without replying, then went into the private office, closing the door. I didn't know that he had locked it."

"And that is all you can tell me, Miss Simon?" asked Coll.

"That's all I know sir."

Coll turned to me.

"Get Marshall over here. He's working across the street in a door man's uniform."

"Under the circumstances, Mrs Baldwin, it will be necessary to delay the funeral for the present until the police have completed their investigation. I would suggest that you return home now. Have you relatives in the city?

"Only my children," she answered. "We have two boys and a girl. They will have to be told."

"You've tried to be very kind to me, Thank you, Mr Coll."

"Haven't I a home with her?" entreated Miss Simon impulsively But Mrs. Baldwin straightened her hat, insisting:

"No, thank you, my dear. I think I would rather be alone."

"You have been calling Doctor Baldwin?

"Yes, Mr. Commissioner."

What have you got to report?"

"Very little, sir, Lieutenant Fallon put me on the job when the doctor left here last night. He got down the elevator in front of me and I was afraid I'd missed him but the elevator operator told me he had got off at the second floor where his office was. So I come back to the second floor and prowled around a bit. There was a light in the office. I could see it through the glass pane, so I pretended to be a drunk and rapped on the door. And I asked the doc if he could give me something to straighten me out before I went home to the wife. When he come to the door, he looked awful mad. He had a wild look in his eyes and his hands were shaking. And he told me to get the hell out of here so I thought that was all right.

"I beat it downstairs with Deems, that's my partner, and I put him on the servants' entrance. There is only the two ways you can get out of this punt, the front door or the servants' entrance. So then I went over and saw the superintendent of the house across the street and he fixed me up with this uniform. So I stands there all morning and about ten o'clock the doc came out. I blew the whistle—Baldwin thought I was calling a cab but my partner knew it was a signal, so Deems come and he began to tail the doc Pretty soon I see Deems bringing the doc back, and I asks him where he went.

"Well, he has a pretty funny story to tell. The doc went to the corner and got in a cab and Deems in another cab right after him. They drove across town, through the transverse, under Central Park and over to West End Avenue to an apartment house on the corner of Seventy-second Street. But Eaid win didn't go in. He got out of the cab, and greets a man, a little dark-complexioned fellow. The man gave him a boy and the doc gave him some money. Then he gets back into the cab and drives back to the corner of Third Avenue where he gets out of the cab and walks over here."

"You can get out of that uniform now," said Coll, when the detective came to a full pause.

"Yes, sir," said Marshall, and began to undress.

"Don't you need me any further, chief?" asked Deems.

"Need you any further? You made a mess of your job Marshall. If you had stuck with Deems, one of you could have followed the little dark man and the other kept after Baldwin. You both should be demoted to patrolmen and sent to Staten Island for this. Now get out of that uniform and report back at your station house. No wonder the newspapers say the police don't know their business."

The Stranger's Car

ELEANOR WAS TIRED [illegible] had [illegible] before. [illegible]

[illegible]

So she said, "I don't do things like that [illegible]

The car was waiting in the same place. Please, he said, you must be tired. Why not let me take you home?

ELEANOR ACCEPTS RIDE

Why not? he said. Eleanor suddenly decided she'd rather enjoy a little flushed at the thought of her daring if he started anything—

And let me off at the corner, answered Eleanor, hastily daring to look at him. She passed the corner. Then, as he did not speak again, she settled back and relaxed. They rode for ten minutes in silence and then he said:

I'd like to tell you something. I don't expect you to believe me, but I've [illegible] I saw you looking at my car and when I asked you to ride home with me it took as much nerve on my part as I'm sure it did on yours to [illegible] I mean I'm not in the habit of asking girls to—well to ride home with me.

MEETS STRANGER AGAIN

"Won't you tell me where you live?" he asked. "I'm sorry my car and I'd like to [illegible] riding some time." As if expecting her to stop him he turned on. "Honestly I would. I mean that I'd like to [illegible] even if it's just to [illegible] block. My name is [illegible] Clawson. I [illegible] Won't you tell me yours?

I—I don't know, answered Eleanor.

"You don't know your own own name?" he asked. He joined stepped the car and turned to smile at her. Suddenly [illegible] herself, Eleanor smiled too.

"I shouldn't do it," she said [illegible] And [illegible] out of the car [illegible]

TRADED HIS CAR

Do you miss the other car?" he asked. He didn't give her time to answer. "I traded it in," he went on. "I mean, I sold it and took this car in part payment. It was too expensive to operate and I didn't have any right having a car like that, anyway."

What do you mean?" asked Eleanor.

Well," he answered, "it was like this. You may remember that a while ago there was a contest to name a new cigarette. I won the second prize and it was this car. At first I thought I would keep it, but a couple of days ago I decided to sell it and get the money. I put the money in the bank and I'll have it if I ever—if I ever—well, if I ever need it."

[illegible] a moment [illegible] mind

"No," answered Eleanor. "I think I like it better than the other one."

Headaches May Be Caused by Faulty Diet

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

IT IS BELIEVED that more than four million persons in the United States including one million children, suffer from migraine or headache. Not all cases are due to failure of elimination. In most of these sufferers have been habitually constipated for years.

The natural impression is associated with our modern [illegible] The eating of highly refined foods lack of roughage in the diet, eating improper habits and carelessness in personal hygiene are factors fundamental to this disturbance.

Boston Club Drops Chi Fray, 1-0

Chicago, March 21—Chicago's Blackhawks knocked the Boston Bruins out of the N. H. L. playoff possibilities here when they blanked the Hub clan, 1 to 0, in a fast, rough hockey conflict.

Paul Thompson of the Hawks was the hero of the evening, tallying in the third period. Paul slammed the disk past his brother, Goalie Tiny of the Bruins, on a rebound from a shot by March.

The defeat sends the Bostonians [illegible] of a possible position in the league final. Tomorrow the Bruins close their last home stand [illegible] for the season taking on the Americans at the Garden.

Tonight the Boston players will bid farewell for the year. Pushing Tiny Thompson to the cold marks the first time since 1928 that the Boston team has not been in the playoffs.

Chuck Gardiner, Hawks' goalie, went through the game with his head bandaged, a big leather helmet covering the bandages which watched his head. The helmet was apparently no handicap to Gardiner, who sustained a head cut recently, for he made some great saves.

As a matter of fact the goaltending of Tiny Thompson preceding the Hawks scoring on at least two occasions, when outstanding stops by the Bruins' net minder drew applause from the Chi fans.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

After the Maple Leafs, arch enemies, had set the stage for them to reach the playoffs by not only stamping the Hawks on Saturday but also by knocking out Chuck Gardiner, the Bruins did a nose dive [illegible] with the Chicagoans with the New York Americans.

The Bruins may be able to get some solace for two games, the Chicago tilt, which they protested but lost the appeal, and the American game on Jan. 3, which went to the Gothamites when referee Cooney failed to give the Gothamites a taste of their own defensive hockey.

Regardless of the fact that they finished last in their division, the Bruins are a far more formidable outfit than either Chicago or Detroit, and not much inferior to the Rangers. It was just one of those years when everything broke against the Bruins and will result in a general shakeup and the start of a period of reconstruction.

Bud Cook, the little Cub center, who was badly injured a fortnight ago, was discharged from the Wesson Hospital last Friday and sat in at the Cub-Tiger game. Bud is many pounds under weight, and will not attempt to play again this season.

The Bruin Cubs hold Eddie Powers in high esteem. Seldom do the youngsters [illegible] their own pockets and pull out hard, cold cash in order to display their regard and respect for a manager.

Ag Smith, who resigned as coach after the suspicious actions of Fredericton Millionaires during the overtime of the second game with the Boston Hockey Club, completely exonerates the local players.

The N. E. A. A. U. controls amateur hockey, that is as far as club games are concerned, and that body should make a thorough investigation of what transpired in that now much discussed contest, regardless of whose toes they trod upon.

Despite the fact that the amateur season is over, the N. E. A. A. U. cannot afford to allow the actions of the Fredericton players to pass without an investigation, and if it attempts to cover up or fails to go through, hockey should be placed under a more thorough and efficient body.

MODERATE RISE IS REGISTERED IN WALL ST.

...York, March 21—An early stage...as finally converted into a moderate rise in trading in Wall St. today. The stock market turned quietly upward and closed with numerous net gains of 1 to 2 points today.

Trading was sluggish, the day's turnover falling below 900,000 shares, but the closing tone was firm.

SELLING DRIES UP

The turn seemed to reflect more than anything else a complete drying up of selling, which in turn promoted short covering. Nevertheless, the general situation was regarded as somewhat more encouraging.

The rails finally responded to President Hoover's reassuring statement of Saturday regarding the reconstruction plan of taking care of the roads' pressing financial requirements, as many in Wall Street saw it.

Advances of around 2 points were registered in American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, Eastman, Atchison and Union Pacific.

Gains of a point or so appeared in such issues as U. S. Steel, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Missouri Pacific preferred, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Texas & Pacific, Westinghouse Electric and Consolidated Gas.

International Harvester preferred dropped about 2 points, but selling for up in Krueger & Toll. General Motors showed a minor fraction to a new low.

HOPE ON AUTO TINTED

Brokerage quarters were rather gloomy over the continued low level of business activity and corporate earnings. Some, however, expressed the view that it was too much to hope that the successful stabilization of the banking structure should result in an immediate impetus to business.

Wall Street is now pinning its hopes to intensive automobile campaigns planned for early April. Should these campaigns arouse an encouraging response, it is hoped that the quarterly earnings statements, due toward the close of the month, may be overlooked.

It is recognized that first quarter earnings have been unfavorably all for many leading corporations.

Motor company executives are prepared to look without discouragement upon first quarter production figures as low as 350,000 units, a decline of about 40 per cent from the mark of 1931, when three months' production equaled 572,000 cars. Ford, however, accounts for a reduction of 160,000 cars. Ford therefore plants, considered this number of units in first quarter last year and none during same period this year.

Government committee of the New York Stock Exchange has determined that dividends payable by members of the exchange on April 1 shall be $250 each and that the said amount shall constitute one contribution by members toward the current expenses of the Exchange. This is the same as in recent quarters.

Associated Gas Is Held by 188,576

There are 188,576 security holders of Associated Gas & Electric Co. This is stated to give Associated the greatest number of security holders of any gas and electric utility company in the United States.

Holders of registered securities of Associated Gas & Electric System totaled 207,115 at the end of 1931, a gain of 16,631 during the year.

Of the total number of registered security holders, 195,625 are customers who reside in more than 2000 cities in 24 states in which the Associated System supplies electric, gas, and other services.

Sees Opposition to Merger Plan

Interests close to the Atlas Utilities Corporation have bought the block of stock of Reliance Management Corporation owned by E. G. Diefendorf, who was the last surviving individual stockholder, at $1.50 a share, the price offered two weeks ago by the Winslow Syndicate.

A group of class A stockholders of Reliance International Corporation and common stockholders of Reliance Management are said to be dissatisfied with the plan for the merger of the two companies and are considering taking legal action to prevent a vote Tuesday.

Orders Increase for Structural Steel

"A spurt in structural steel bookings, putting last week's total up to 20,311 tons, second highest for 1932, accentuated by further broad inquiry for structural material supplies the only encouraging item in the steel markets," states the magazine Steel.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Ten young women have volunteered to listen to ten male patients at Illinois insane hospital talk about themselves in an experiment to see if female companionship cures dementia praecox.

It's all right if the man can get a word in edgewise.

IT'S GREAT TO BE ALIVE TODAY!

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Wagner is putting on a stunt over at the Bijou that's something to talk about. It is a weekly compendium of current scenes, like important doings in London, Paris and New York. You sit there in your opera chair and the panorama of the whole world is unrolled and moving before you. Where is the miracle that approaches it in wonder?

GIANTS OF INDUSTRY

This is Cuthbert S. Patella, chiropodist, who has just purchased a yacht, a mechanical pipe organ and three Persian rugs for his garage. "I am doing all right," claims Mr. Patella "since I advertised special rates for treating the feet of bill collectors."

Gals with legs like Marlene D.
Don't seem to be for you and me.

* * *

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella—
A man has been annoying me for days and I don't know what to do. Worried.

Ans.—Divorce him.

A. ("Free & Easy") Bella.

The plan is sans reason—although as a rule
The rogue is quite charming—the nice guy's a fool.

Put fish hooks in papa's stew.
Mother said, "Boy, here's a dime!
Papa sure got caught that time."

Snappy retort, 1902—
"Well, the nerve of some people's children!"

PARADOXICALAMITY

Grunting husbands, moody, surly,
Nine times out of ten
Seem to have far better luck

The woman, for instance, who's tapped on the jaw
Will stick by the brute through blizzard and thaw—
While the wife who is pampered by endless attention

To the guy who's broke or busted
Gals are usually mistrusted.

The saintly woman, patient, true,
Prefers a guy like me or you—
The worthless type of female mouse
Will land a flawless, perfect spouse.

* * *

"But this'll never be a very dry country," says Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "so long as when to stop is a problem, and where to start isn't."

BRAIN TEASER AWARD GOES TO WOMAN

Mrs. Julian E. Ashby, 6 Hollander st., Roxbury, was adjudged winner of the third "Brain Teaser" contest, conducted by the Boston Evening American and Keith R. K. O. Theater in connection with the current picture, "Explorers of the World." Mrs. Ashby wins $5 cash.

The name of the American president who explored Africa was not Stanley, nor Taft, nor James Madison, as some contestants stated. Zuyder Zee is not a waterfall but a river in Holland many thousands of miles from Africa. Niagara Falls is not a famous waterfall in Africa but a town in Maine. Nile and Congo are the two largest rivers in Africa and gold is not a valuable gem. These facts outline some of the points on which contestants failed. Nearly two dozen entries were received without names, others without addresses.

George N. Falwell, 169 Cambridge st., Allston; Mary Cannata, 149 Parmenia st., Boston; William K. Kezar, West Gerden st., Hyde Park; Theodore Tiddens, 34 West Somerville; William McNary, 1044 Adams st., Dorchester; John B. Shields, 73 Ida st., Roxbury; Alice Cullen, 34 Chenkea st., Roxbury; Edward J. Dewey, 6 Everett st., Medford; Priscilla Wessel, 7 Wagner, U. S. Marine Barracks, Navy Yard; Doris Mayhew, N. H.; Albert Jones, 2 Pine st., Hudson st., Woburn; William S. Donovan, 25 School st., Lynn; Frederick Hoffman, 241 Lebanon st., Malden; K. Donati, 24 Cedar st., Everett; Robert F. Stevens, 174 Austin st., Somerville; Charles C. Gingras, 29 Bennett st., Everett; Hope Thorne, 10 S Miner st., Somerville; Robert Hall, 503A Summer st., Somerville; Francis O'Brien, 865 Harrison ave., Boston; Gilbert Polio, 6 Porter pk., Roxbury; Evelyn Meinel, 388 Washington ave., Chelsea; Mrs. C. E. Hendricks, 222 Broadway, Somerville; Albert Keenan, 526 Huntington ave., Boston; Forrest Cann, 209 Penn st., Lake, Quincy; Barbara V. Means, 5 Austin st., Somerville; and Wilfred J. Anderson, 4 Orchard st., Gloucester.

$5 a Day
25 GUEST TICKETS

HAROLD NOICE

Are you going to be one of the lucky readers of the Boston Evening American who will receive a cash award of $5 for the best answers to simple questions in geography?

Today's set of brain teasers completes the group that have been published in the Boston Evening American in conjunction with the management of the RKO-Keith Theater, which is offering the cash prizes.

If you can answer them correctly you will be awarded $5 in cash by the RKO Keith Theater. The management of the theater is offering $5 daily for the correct answers to the simple questions on geography. Twenty-five guest tickets will also be awarded to those sending in the next best answers.

Your answers should be sent in to the Brain Teaser Contest Editor of the Boston American. Names of the winners will be published in Wednesday's Boston American.

Sinabians of Boston in Reno Divorce

Reno, Nev., March 21 (INS)—Mrs. Helen S. Pond today was scheduled to obtain a divorce from Warren R. Pond, her socially prominent New York husband. She charged extreme cruelty.

Other cases on the calendar included Charles Sinabian vs. Arden Sinabian of Boston, married Oct. 12, 1924. Cruelty was charged.

AIR CONTEST NEARS END

March 22, midnight, is the deadline on answers and essays in the Aero Facts Contest.

No envelope bearing a postmark later than that hour will be opened.

So, boys of New England, get your answers and essays in promptly to the Aero Facts Contest Editor, Boston American, Box 185, Boston, Mass.

The main thing to remember is that the essay should be not more than 100 words.

The contest has been a rare opportunity for boys to test their knowledge, and to do digging for more information with which to answer the questions—in short, to equip themselves with a fund of information on this great modern science, aviation. On this great modern business, air transportation.

The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America and Air Transport Section—and the Boston Evening American now await your answers and essays, New England boys. And the judges, too.

Be on time!

Public-Defying Dry Congressman Must Go!

DALLINGER UNDERHILL LUCK

The House of Representatives, by the slender majority with which it stifled the resubmission of the liquor problem to the voters, has plunged into a HEAD-ON COLLISION WITH THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

This is the most dangerous form of collision. There can be but one result—demolishing and utter disaster for the colliding body—in this case, the dry Congressmen, who chose to ignore the signals of public opinion, plainly set in warning against their blind and bigoted course.

NOW FOR THE DEBRIS! IT MUST BE CLEARED AWAY!

From the State of Massachusetts there were THREE CONGRESSMEN WHO VOTED THEIR DISTRUST OF THE PEOPLE, THEIR FEAR OF THE POPULAR VERDICT, THEIR PURPOSE TO DISFRANCHISE THE VOTERS, AND THEIR DETERMINATION TO KEEP IN FORCE A LAW WHICH HAS LOST THE SANCTION OF PUBLIC OPINION, AND BECOME A MENACE TO THE LIFE OF THE NATION. Their names are:

CHARLES L. UNDERHILL, Republican, of Somerville, representing the Ninth District.

There were none recorded as absent or not voting.

THESE MEN MUST GO. THEY MUST BE RETIRED FROM PUBLIC LIFE. They must be defeated when they seek re-election to the office they have so abused.

They are too fatuous to see that they are NOT VOTING FOR TEMPERANCE, BUT FOR THE PERPETUATION OF ABUSES WHICH ARE GNAWING THE VERY VITALS OF AMERICAN LIFE.

They are protecting NOT the morals of the community, but all the hateful spawn of the prohibition failure—RACKETEERING, ORGANIZED CRIME AND THE PERVADING CORRUPTION OF OFFICIAL LIFE WHICH IS SAPPING THE SOURCES OF OUR WELL-BEING.

But the scales at last are falling from our eyes. Politicians of this stamp are now seen in their true guise. The public can no longer be deceived.

The 187 votes cast in favor of the resubmission of the liquor problem represented more than half of the population of the country.

SHALL THE VOICE OF THIS GREAT MASS OF AMERICANS BE SUPPRESSED? Shall it not even be heard on this vital issue?

THE DRY CONGRESSMAN SAYS IT SHALL NOT.

No Representative can bid defiance to an aroused public determined to rid the nation of crime and corruption, and remain in public life.

THE DRY CONGRESSMAN MUST GO!

Charge "Unproven"

An elderly citizen in New Orleans was recently set upon by a crowd of 300 women and severely beaten up. This was after they had first battered in the doors and windows of his house to show how annoyed they felt about him. His crime, it appears, was that he had criticised the women for going around barelegged.

Or was it just that? Three hundred ladies with sufficient force of character to go about with bare legs can't really care what anybody else thinks about it. This citizen was probably a crank out for some strange ideal in his own mind—a stockinged world.

Men and women are a long-suffering and patient race. They have a genius for being tolerant to cranks and reformers who tell them what (or what not) to eat, drink and wear. The world is pretty safe for cranks, and is full of a million cranks having a perfectly good time.

It can't be that the New Orleans women beat up this citizen merely because he disliked bare legs. Perhaps he wasn't a crank at all. He was just an ornery critter and they had got tired of him.

The Beauty Pageant

The International Pageant of Pulchritude—which landed Galveston on the front page, or near it, for the last 12 years—has gone on the rocks.

Depression gets the blame for it. But maybe the pageant was never quite international enough. Last year's show, with its 30 American and six foreign high-powered beauties skipping down the boardwalk in bathing suits, didn't seem quite representative.

The Congo wasn't represented, nor Cochin-China, Siam, Tibet, Alaska nor Patagonia, nor 289 other countries. And the maidens who did show up all looked pretty much alike. Some five million better looking ones stayed home, and wouldn't have gone to Galveston anyway, even on free tickets.

But Galveston hasn't given up hope entirely. She will glorify the Venuses from Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma. A faint huzza for them. Bostonians will take more interest in the free show along Tremont and Boylston streets.

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, March 21—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and fell to thinking of Broadway press-agents of other days—Wells Hawks, William Raymond Sill and A. Toxen Worm. So breaking bread with Lowell Thomas, the aircaster, and his lady, and Bob and Pat Brinkerhoff there and much rag, tag, bobtail and hanky-panky.

Then through town to my chambers, talking a moment along the way with Montague Glass and his wife, Tippy Gray, Bebe Daniels and Sadie Murray. To my task and Mildred Cornwall came with good news of Dean and his murals for the Los Angeles Library.

With my wife to Dot and Deke Aylesworth's and came also the Rex Coles, William F. Careys, Ely Culbertsons, Frank Masons, Bruce Bartons, Frank Crowninshield, the Roy Howards, Marian Cooper, John Loyal and others, and the merriest evening since Bill Hogg's 1928 Xmas party.

Someone—the publisher, I presume—sent a book calle," "The Rise of Herbert Hoover." It has lain in my workshop until today, when I picked it up, skimmed a half-dozen chapters and had it tossed in the furnace. I'm neither for Hoover nor against him. Such biased trash, however, strengthens a lurking sense of loyalty.

Some other, with a more agreeable sense of humor, sends this sartorial note from an 1880 edition of an old Sun: "The well-dressed gentleman is never without his gold tooth-pick."

* * *

One of the most persistent first nighters is a middle-aged, golden-haired and aristocratic lady known to the Death Watch rather inelegantly as "The Weasel." She rarely misses a premiere and is somewhat of a mystery.

There is a scene in a current comedy in which a very prim old lady enters a room where gentlemen are talking over the economic crisis. When she hears the word crisis, she cringes and admonishes: "Gentlemen, such language!"

Persistent rumors the depressing pile that is the Metropolitan Opera will vanish into the maw of the wreckers next month unfounded. A new opera is not a remote possibility. The whole grand opera idea has gone out like the starched dinguses grandmas used to wear. Aside from that, it has failed to produce vibrant personalities such as Caruso, Jeritza and Farrar. The nearest is Lily Pons. Her voice is superb, but her personality so-so. She hasn't the fire of the charmer, but rather that slick, glacial quality of Beatrice Lillie, whom she resembles. She likes to sit in her family hotel and sew while her stolid Dutch husband, August Mesritz, puffs rings from his goose-necked meerschaum.

Add lost illusions: For weeks I have been standing before the proletarian facade of a pert little doughnut shop—licking my chops and longing to sink fangs into autumnal brown crullers simmering gaily in bubbly grease. Today I did. A discarded blotter would have done as well. Or a sour strand of an old mop.

Over at the Waldorf an old friend told me of an iron worker filmed teetering dizzily at his task for a news reel. When he saw it he became so self-conscious he had to give up his hazardous calling.

* * *

A decadent stage now exploiting a Kiki Roberts or Mrs. Jack Diamond recalls the girls who shot the millionaire Stokes and were billed at the Old Hammerstein's as the "Shooting Show Girls." After one week glum Willie Hammerstein was asked if he wanted them another. Flushing into inarticulate fury, he finally screamed: "Not if she shot Ta.!"

Listen, World!

Why Bright People Fail

SIX CHILD prodigies—six precocious youngsters, well larded with genius — Northwestern University wants them.

If they can find them it will try a unique experiment. These children will be segregated—placed in a special environment where they will associate only with each other—given special instruction and opportunity.

Hitherto genius children have had to enter the regular university classes; waste their rare energies in conflict and competition with the common herd. In Northwestern University they will be shielded from all such unpleasantness, and—we shall see what we shall see.

And personally, just between one mutt 'n' another, I'm betting that we'll see a flop.

Bright people—why do they so often fail?

There was that young fellow who worked with you in your job ten years ago. Remember how he shot ahead? Certainly seemed as if he had the world by the tail, didn't it? But how about his record since then? One job after another. Always starting big—all the glitter and swank of a Hollywood first night—but after a couple of weeks the same old thing—blowing up; tangling with someone; getting mad at some trifle; going off in a huff.

Bright fellow. One of the brightest fellows you have ever known; BUT HE COULDN'T MANAGE TO GET ALONG WITH PEOPLE.

And there was that girl who took all the honors in High School. An odd stick, wasn't she? But a wizard with books. Everyone said she'd have a wonderful future. But she finished out, too, didn't she. Went to college did wonderfully there, too. But when she left the campus, things went wrong. She couldn't seem to make contacts. Became very shy and sensitive. Got so she herded off by herself. Now she's bookkeeping in a little one-horse firm.

SHE COULDN'T GET ALONG WITH PEOPLE, EITHER.

Brains; they are a great thing. IF YOU KNOW HOW TO USE THEM. But you can't learn how to use your brains by studying books and reciting lessons—or conversing with other geniuses.

Life demands a knowledge of human nature, an ability to adapt yourself to human nature. And generally speaking, in the struggle for success, one ounce of charm or good nature or tact or common sense is worth a ton of talent.

"But do the great artists need knowledge of people and how to get along with people?" you say. "Surely you don't have to understand human nature to be a fine musician."

But you sure DO. For art, like every other expression of our life, is based on the human spirit. Art is man's—every man's—need, expressed in words, in music, in pictures. And, unless it is an expression of our need, it isn't art.

Yehudi Menuhin is a child prodigy. When he was still a baby, he could draw from his violin music that laughed and sobbed and whispered the hidden secret of every heart that listened. And the world, wondering, said that he did this because he was being trained as a genius.

But that was not so. Yehudi Menuhin is a genius, but he was trained as a normal little boy. He practices only two hours a day, and during other hours he works and plays with other children of his own age—ordinary, gay little people who tussle and race and laugh with him along the beach and over the sunny hills of San Francisco.

Yehudi Menuhin is learning how to be a great musician, but he is also learning how to be a great and well balanced man; and so his music will not be something detached from human experience—a mechanical marvel—but it will be a warm, a breathing part of your life and mine.

A bright mind that lives like a lone wolf may once in a million times be of service to humanity and a blessing to its owner. But the other 999,999 times it's a pain in the neck.

Just Folks

A Picture

He called himself a man, and yet
Small irritations made him fret.
And he was often heard to chide
The children romping at his side.
Honest he was in debts of trade,
He never left a bill unpaid,
But still he seldom made a gift
Which broke the iron rule of thrift.
He never felt the weight of care,
But what he thought it most unfair.
When little blunders caught his eye,
Into a towering rage he'd fly.
He'd do for strangers, as a mask,
Favors his own folks feared to ask,
And fancied gain was quicker made
By keeping clerks of him afraid.
If this be manhood—Son, I pray,
You'll shape your life some other way.

28 Years Old, And Still Growing

Evening American's Tremendous Lead Over Competitors Proves Again That Nothing Succeeds Like Circulation

TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS ago today—March 21, 1904—the Boston Evening American issued its first edition. This newspaper was then, as it is today, a newspaper of TODAY and of TOMORROW, never of yesterday.

This is a progressive day, a progressive age. Yesterday is history, today is progress and achievement. Tomorrow means more progress, more striving for accomplishment, new ideas, new methods.

Twenty-eight years to the Evening American means only the lessons of experience applied to the ideas of today, never a deadening reliance upon the memories of accomplishments of yesterday.

THE EVENING AMERICAN is a newspaper for the readers of today. As such it strives to print all the interesting news and news pictures of today; to print the facts in the news, and to print the news first.

Today's news today, accurately and without bias. Evening American editors and reporters are trained to follow that principle, and adhere strictly to that ideal. The past year has been marked by a long and continuing series of news beats, and of picture exclusives. Many notable campaigns for the public welfare have been carried on to a successful conclusion.

THAT the people of Greater Boston know these facts and appreciate them is evidenced by the constantly growing circulation of the Evening American, and the consequently greater margin of circulation supremacy of this newspaper over any of its evening newspaper competitors. The greater part of the Evening American's very large circulation, more than 85 per cent in fact, is concentrated in the Boston shopping area, where more than 225,000 families each day depend upon it for their daily presentation of the news.

IN total circulation, Evening American readers outnumber those of any other New England evening newspaper by nearly 100,000 a day. The Evening American's very large circulation is very nearly as great as the COMBINED circulations of other Boston newspapers' morning and evening editions, and within a few thousand as large as the COMBINED circulations of the two larger of the three other evening newspapers. Many thousands read no other newspaper. They depend entirely upon the Evening American for their newspaper reading, in perfect confidence they will receive each day ALL the news, accurately told, and many exclusive features they can get in no other newspaper.

THE year 1932 finds the Evening American forging ahead with increasing speed and this newspaper takes this opportunity to thank its great army of readers for their help and co-operation in maintaining the very large circulation supremacy. Total net paid circulation for the month of February, a normal month, before the Lindbergh tragedy sent circulation figures to a new record high, was over 266,000 copies per day. During this month the Evening American's great family of readers in the Boston shopping area alone increased by more than 8000 subscribers each day for the entire month. This means 8000 MORE than the already very large number of Greater Boston readers of this newspaper.

Nothing succeeds like circulation. A circulation such as the Evening American's proves beyond challenge great public confidence in a newspaper's accuracy, its completeness, its honesty of intent, its interest in the public welfare.

EVEN as Greater Boston has grown during this 28 years into one of the nation's most populous and prosperous communities, a community in which hundreds of thousands work and shop in Boston, so has the Evening American maintained its steady growth.

Each year during that long period the Evening American has continued to be the community's leading evening newspaper, by an ever increasing margin.

Payrolls and expenditures have increased as the newspaper has grown. Last year more than $3,000,000 was distributed among the Hearst newspapers' 1500 employes in Boston. Total expenditures in Boston for the year exceeded $4,500,000. The grand total for the 28 years runs into many millions of dollars.

Numbered among the thousands who have been devoted and loyal members of the Evening American family of readers and employes since March 21, 1904, are many workers in the mechanical, editorial and business departments.
